Wanted, a Financial Idea
The Honolulu Crime
Naked Parade Threatened
This Wolf Howls Strangely

By Arthur Brisbane

SECRETARY MELLON tells the House of Representatives, controlled by Democrats, "We are in the midst of a great emergency, and extra money must be raised by extra taxation, to balance the budget." This means that somebody, principally those that have substantial incomes, will have to pay one thousand, three hundred and ten millions more in 1932 than they did in 1931. It also means adding 1,700,000 Americans to the number of taxpayers. The new recruits will not enjoy that.

Secretary Mellon also advocates a sales tax.

This necessity of raising suddenly more than thirteen hundred million dollars in taxes emphasizes the fact that this biggest, richest government, in any emergency, is at the mercy of financial institutions created by itself.

Secretary Mellon says the people must be taxed so heavily "to preserve the credit of the United States government."

The government which makes all the money for everybody else, pouring out hundreds of millions through the federal reserve bank, when needed, cannot make any money for ITSELF. It must borrow from banks and citizens as you would do. And when financiers are not lending, the government, with all its credit, is helpless to get money, just as the City of New York, that has twenty thousand millions in real estate to offer as security, cannot borrow.

Perhaps some financial genius will enable the United States government to use its credit, its absolutely unlimited resources, the wealth upon which its yearly income of A HUNDRED BILLIONS is based, without having to borrow from discouraged finance.

This government, in all, owes only a little more than twenty billions, and the country's annual income is a hundred billions. Bankers are not to blame for refusing to buy all the securities that national and the city governments would like to sell.

They can only buy from government what the people will buy from them. But imagine a man worth two millions finding it difficult to borrow more than twenty thousand dollars. That is the position of this country, its income five per cent on two thousand billions, finding it hard to borrow a little more than twenty billions.

No ordinary business could live if its credit were thus restricted.

The government should find a way to extend its credit and get money when it wants it.

Honolulu crime sensation commands the attention of the national government. Five Hawaiians, accused of attacking the wife of a United States navy officer, were discharged because a local jury did not agree.

The woman had been horribly ill-treated, bruised from head to foot, her jaw broken. After a jury disagreement, one of the five, alleged to be the ringleader in the outrage, was murdered. His body was found in the possession of the mother and husband of the woman attacked, and they are to be tried for murder.

To protect them from the native mob, they were taken on board of an American battleship, but orders have been given to return them for trial to the local authorities, which, in the view of public opinion, seems a little dangerous.

A disagreeable feature of this unpleasant case is the fact that two enlisted men of the navy were apparently taken into the confidence of those that planned the murder, and made scenes sories to the murder, if they did not actually engage in it. The subordinate position of these sailors made it difficult for them to refuse an officer's order, or request, and great responsibility rests upon those that led them into such disgrace.

Unemployed women of Brisbane, Australia, indignant at the refusal of the minister of labor to meet them and discuss their grievances, declare that they will march naked through the streets of the city, by way of protest.

The city police are disturbed because the unemployed women are so numerous that it would be impossible to arrest them all or prevent their naked parade.

This news would interest the late Sir Thomas Brisbane, who established that city in Australia and built his astronomical observatory there.

The idea of the ladies of Brisbane is not new. Such parades have been carried out by men and women of the Doukhobor sect, in Russia and Canada. A naked parade would certainly concentrate public attention on conditions against which it protests.

BOSTON CLUE TO WOMEN KILLERS

IN HER THIRD DIVORCE SUIT

Mrs. Nina Lewis Webster, former Follies beauty, who divorced George Walton Webster, Jr., Beacon Hill grocery scion, in Middlesex Probate Court after he had divorced her in Yucatan, Mexico, will, on January 20 in Carson City, Nev., face another —her third—battle with him. WEBSTER LOVE FIGHT IS SET

Trial of the divorce suit of George Walton Webster, Jr., wealthy Beacon Hill grocery scion, was set today in Carson City, Nev., for Jan. 20—and it will be exciting, according to predictions.

The divorce suit, charging indiscretions against Mrs. Nina Lewis Webster, former Follies girl, is the latest move in a series of Webster marital entanglements.

Back in 1924, Webster, characterized by his wife as "a playboy who could be found either in jail or entertaining a woman in some questionable hotel when he didn't show up at home," obtained a divorce in Yucatan, Mex., from the former Nina Lewis of the Follies.

Webster subsequently married, and then Nina complicated things a bit by getting her own divorce in June, 1928, in Middlesex Probate Court.

Last October, Webster, ignoring her Middlesex County divorce, filed suit in Carson City, charging extreme cruelty.

Mrs. Webster succeeded in obtaining $35 a week, pending trial, and $200 counsel fees.

STOCKS SOAR ON BRISK BUYING

New York, Jan. 14—Stocks soared $1 to $4 a share on active buying in today's transactions on the New York Stock Exchange, while in the bond division U. S. Government issues extended their sharp advance of the previous session.

Stocks leaders were bought in blocks of 1000 to 6000 shares as a violent bull drive sent the list skyward. Possibility of a reduction in the Federal Reserve Bank's rediscount rate added stimulus to the advance.

Leaders up 2 or more included Atchison, American Tobacco B, Auburn Auto and Eastman Kodak.

Laval and Tardieu Head New Cabinet

$10,000 Cut in Pay for Babe Ruth

New York, Jan. 14 (AP)—Babe Ruth today received a 1932 contract from the New York Yankees, offering him $70,000, a reduction of $10,000.

Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, said the Babe was tendered a one-year agreement only.

Ruth promptly sent the contract back unsigned. He said he would accept a two-year contract for $70,000 a year.

The home run slugger received $80,000 a year under a two-year contract that covered the 1930-31 seasons. He declared a few days ago he did not think he should be asked to take a "cut," inasmuch as last season was one of his best at bat.

Ruppert indicated he considered the offer eminently fair, under present conditions, pointing to the tremendous amount the Yankees had paid Ruth and the fact that his salary steadily had been increased.

$9 TELEPHONE DIVIDEND SURE

New York, Jan. 14 (AP)—Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., in a statement to stockholders today said that 1931 earnings had fully covered dividend requirements of $9 a share on the capital stock.

The annual report of the company will be issued early in March, he said.

Conjecture over earnings of the company, whose stock is widely held by investors here and abroad, arose when its subsidiary, the Western Electric Co., omitted its dividend in the second half of the year.

The 1930 net income was $165,544,707, or equivalent to $18.45 a share. Loss of over 207,000 telephones was reported in 1931.

Letters to Former Attache in Peru Reveals Commerce Dept. as "Promoters"

Washington, Jan. 14 (AP)—A letter from the Commerce Department to an American commercial attache at Lima, Peru, telling him to "be encouraging whenever possible" was presented today to the Senate finance committee.

The letter was submitted by Oliver Townsend, former attache at Lima, who received it from Thomas R. Taylor, assistant director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

"We are builders, promoters, even propagandists," Taylor wrote.

U. S. SALES TO PERU

"It is my impression that you are over-alarmed about a temporary trade condition that has slowed up business, but should not preclude all consideration of American sales to Peru."

Another part of the letter written on May 26, 1927, after Townsend said he had submitted unfavorable reports about further loans to Peru, follows:

"SPIRIT OF BUSINESS"

"In this connection, I should like to emphasize that the business follows the spirit of American business, which is to make sales in spite of difficulties, or to find ways of doing seemingly impossible things.

"As officials we should be encouraging whenever possible and discouraging only in the last extremity.

"We are builders, promoters, even propagandists, although never to such an extent that we fail to recognize and point out difficulties."

TWO VIRGINIA KILLERS ARE SOUGHT HERE

Suspects in Murder of Society Woman and Maid Hunted in Roxbury District

Boston police today maintained a watch over all railroad and bus terminals for two Negroes wanted in connection with the killing of Mrs. Agnes B. Ilsley, society woman, and her maid at Middleburg, Va.

This action followed receipt by Capt. Edward Fallon of police headquarters of a telegram from Middleburg authorities requesting a lookout be kept for the two men.

One of them was reported to have relatives living in Roxbury. A squad of inspectors was sent there today, but no one could be located who admitted knowing the man.

Big Man Hunt Started for Two Slain Women

Middleburg, Va., Jan. 14 (INS)—Virginia echoed to the shrill cry, "Man hunt," today.

Police and penalace joined in a search for the slayer in the bootjack murder of Mrs. Spencer Ilsley, wealthy widow, social leader and horsewoman of Washington, New York and Milwaukee, and her elderly maid, Mrs. Anne Buckner of Rockville, Md.

A dark-skinned negro ex-convict is suspected as the killer. He was a former employe on the Ilsley estate.

REWARD FOR KILLER

There was nothing of hysteria in the search and no talk of lynching. But there was a grim determination to see that the law apprehended the slayer on whose head a $500 reward was placed by Middlebury citizenry.

Police have anxiously awaited a report on fingerprints which might be found in the homes where the murders occurred. Every rear and colored neighborhood was carefully watched.

A car stolen from Mrs. Ilsley's garage was found just outside Washington on the Richmond-Washington pike. This discovery switched one angle of the search to the nation's capital. Police

Vaughn disappeared a year ago, shortly before discrepancies in his accounts were discovered, and the last trace of him was at a Baltimore hotel last March. The total shortage in his accounts is said to reach $200,000.

Santos to Use Coffee to Produce Gaslight

Santos, Brazil, Jan. 14 (INS)—The city government today decided to use coffee instead of coal for gas supply, upon which much of the street lighting depends.

Tests convinced officials the coffee bean was as efficient as coal for the purpose.

There are more than 1,000,000 sacks of coffee on hand through overproduction. Much has been used as fuel for railway locomotives.

SHOUSE AFTER $1,500,000

Chicago, Jan. 14 (AP)—Need for a $1,500,000 war chest if the Democratic party is to hold and increase its gains made since 1928, was stressed by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the national executive committee, at a luncheon of the party's Illinois "victory committee" today.

Calling attention to what he termed the woeful lack of organization and the depleted condition of the party treasury prior to the 1928 campaign, he said remarkable results toward stabilization had been achieved through the efforts of Nanutional Chairman Raskob.

"We want to enlarge our activities during the next six months," he said . . . "We want to tell the Democratic story to the people of the country in an even more impressive fashion up to the day the convention opens so that we will have the election won before we hold the convention; it means the use of radio facilities; it means the enlargement of all publicity facilities."

The balances of the deficit from the last campaign, Mr. Shrouse said, is approximately $445,000.

MELLON USES JOB TO SELL ALUMINUM, SAYS PATMAN

TEXAN QUOTES FROM TREASURY PAMPHLET

Says Publication Shows There Is No Chance of Competition on Contracts

Washington, Jan. 14 (AP)—Secretary Mellon was charged today by Representative Patman with using his control of public buildings to further the use of aluminum.

The Texas Democrat opened his second day of argument before the House judiciary committee on his resolution to impeach the treasury chief by exhibiting a copy of "The Federal Architect," a treasury publication.

"It is no secret that Mellon controls the Aluminum Company of America," Patman said. "And it is known that where aluminum is used there is no chance of competition.

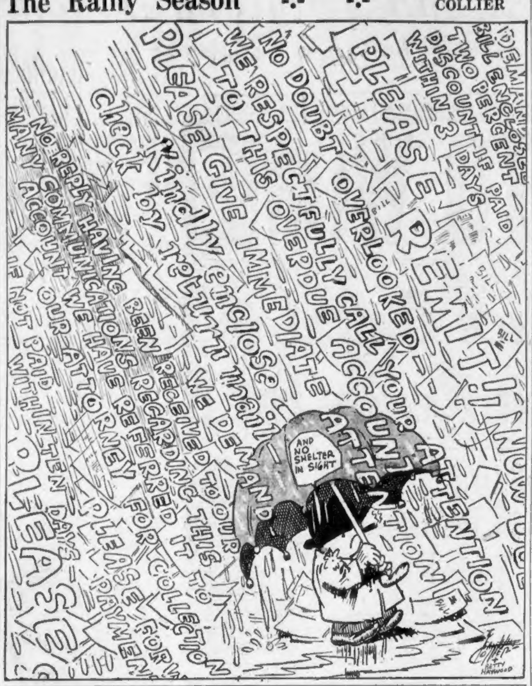

"This publication tells outside architects what will please the Secretary of the Treasury. It tells them in no uncertain terms how to use aluminum."

Patman said the publication has been issued only since the pressure of the building program has made the employment of outside architects essential.

He quoted from a letter which said aluminum had been specified by the Treasury for window screens on a federal building at Hot Springs.

Mellon was charged by Patman with a part in the credit extension to Colombia arranged by New York bankers at about the time a large oil concession was granted the Mellon owned Gulf Oil Company.

G. O. P. LEADERS PICK WALSH FOR BENCH

Pres. Hoover Seriously Considers Montana Senator to Succeed Justice Holmes

Washington, Jan. 14 (INS)—President Hoover is seriously considering the appointment of Senator Thomas J. Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, to the vacancy on the U. S. Supreme Court bench caused by the retirement of Oliver Wendell Holmes, "the great liberal."

The principal reason the President is giving such serious consideration to Walsh is that—oddly enough—Republican leaders of the Senate are backing him almost to a man.

Whether they will be successful remains to be seen, but singularly enough, the move appears wholly Republican.

No Democratic Senators have participated in the conferences—not because they do not approve of Walsh, but because they were unaware of the Republican movement in his behalf.

READY FOR CONFIRMATION

One of the most potent arguments used in Walsh's behalf is that his confirmation by the Senate would be almost instantaneous.

Republican leaders are most anxious to avoid anything approaching a contest over the successor to Justice Holmes, such as occurred in two of Mr. Hoover's previous supreme court appointments.

The Senate fought for days before confirming Chief Justice Hughes, and in the case of John J. Parker the battle was so bitter that the President ultimately was forced to withdraw Parker's name.

With these contests still fresh in the public mind, Republican leaders have strongly urged Mr. Hoover to appoint a man this time about whose qualifications and confirmation there can be no doubt. They have also informed the President that the country expects "a Liberal" to succeed the greatest liberal that ever sat on the bench, and they regard Walsh as coming within that category.

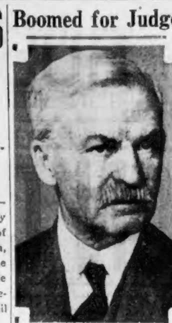

IS 72 BUT ACTIVE

The political implications in Walsh's appointment have also been stressed. Walsh is a Democrat and a Catholic. The last three appointments to the bench have been Republican.

One thing that may militate against Senator Walsh is his age. He is 72, but his friends point out that there is no more industrious member of the Senate than he, despite his age.

There is no dearth of other candidates. President Hoover already has almost a score of names on his desk—Senator Borah (R.) of Idaho, Judge Benjamin N. Cardozo of New York, Judge William S. Kenyon of Iowa, George W. Wickersham, John W. Davis, Atty.-Gen. William D. Mitchell, Judge William T. James of California, Gerald Hughes of Denver, Garrett McEnerney of San Francisco, Judge Joseph C. Hutcheson of Texas, and many others.

HEIRESS GUILTY OF MURDER

Flint, Mich., Jan. 14 (AP)—Miss Helen Joy Morgan, 27-year-old heiress, was convicted today of second degree murder for the slaying last April 23 of Leslie Castwell, her garage mechanic sweetheart, and immediately sentenced to serve from 20 to 25 years in prison.

There had been forecasts of a quick verdict, particularly after the court, in its instructions, had told the jurors that "if you find that Helen Joy Morgan took a pistol from Leslie Casteel during the tryst and then had opportunity to escape without shooting him, you should find her guilty of manslaughter."

Miss Morgan has insisted Casteel took a pistol to the tryst, and that she wrested it from him when he treatened her.

THOUSANDS OF RUM RESORTS IN BUFFALO

Rep. Cooke Tells Committee City Drinking More Beer Now Than Ever Before

Washington, Jan. 14 (AP)—Representative Edmund F. Cooke, Republican, in advocating the Bingham four per cent beer bill, told a Senate committee today that more beer is being consumed in Buffalo now than before prohibition when 1,000,000 barrels a year were produced in that city.

"The saloon in Buffalo has not disappeared except in name," the Buffalo legislator said.

"Soft drink joints dispensing beer, alcohol, whisky, gin, 'smoke,' redistilled denatured alcohol and wines flourish by the thousand."

Cooke said "four large breweries" in Buffalo produced 25,000,000 gallons of wort in 1931 and that this "is sold in containers, delivered to houses, fermented and bottled by the purchaser and in due time becomes a beverage of some 4 or 5 percent alcoholic content."

Demand for wort is steadily increasing, he said.

He contended the "attempt to exercise control of the use of liquor by prohibition has produced greater evils than that it would prevent," saying conditions in all large cities with respect to enforcement "are practically identical."

BET BILL FILED BY TUCKERMAN

Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., society sprtsman, today filed one of two bills recorded at the State House to legalize pari-mutuel betting at horse races.

The other bill, filed for James J. Egan of Boston by Rep. Daniel J. Coakley of Chicopee, provides for legal betting at dog races.

With a list of sponsors that resembled several pages from the Blue Book, Tuckerman filed his bill through Reps. Francis Rafter of Salem and Christian Herter of Boston.

TO AID STATE FUNDS

Both bills were comprehensive in their wording, but both gave for their purpose a need for funds in the agriculture and old-age assistance funds.

"It is our belief that a limited amount of racing, both running and trotting, would be of real benefit to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and give much pleasure to our citizens," said a statement signed jointly by Tuckerman and Frederick F. Field, the latter as president of the Brockton Fair.

"It is our belief that it is a possibility that by 1933 agriculture and the old-age assistance fund would benefit $400,000 to $500,000.

"Racing is a great sport enjoyed in many states under the same form of supervision as we propose.

COMMISSION PROPOSED

"We feel that we have taken the best from various laws, eliminating the parts found undesirable and cannot help feeling enthusiastic about the whole proposition."

Establishment of 'The Massachusetts Racing Commission" is provided in the bill for supervision of the racing and pari-mutuel bets.

The Coakley bill provieds for a commission of three to be appointed by the Governor.

Three per cent or all bets and various other taxes would go into the state coffers, according to the bill.

AID REFUSED IN PAY CUT FIGHT

Lowell, Jan. 14 (AP)—Directors of the Chamber of Commerce today declined to co-operate with the Lowell teachers' organization in opposing the 20 per cent reductions in teachers' salaries proposed by the municipal finance commission.

The teachers had appealed to leading business men to protest the cut, and they in turn referred the matter to the Chamber of Commerce.

The directors declared that failure of the city employes to accept the proposed reduction would leave the city in an impaired financial condition.

Teachers have not yet been paid $106,000 owing from December, while bankers to whom city heads have been appealed for a loan in anticipation of revenue have refused to advance the money unless the budget is cut by $715,000.

Gov. Ely, who will have Mrs. Smith beside him at the banquet, meets the party at the station, and will be accompanied by Leopold M. Some cynic suggests that the wolf doesn't howl on Sundays because that is the one day when no food is given to him. Others say he stops howling on Sunday because he does not hear the noon time factory whistles that stimulate his howling. It is easy to be cynical, much more interesting to believe.

Bunyan believed that the hen raised her face to Heaven in gratitude to her Creator every time she swallowed water. Cold science says that she does that because her mouth has no power of suction and she cannot get the water down without lifting her beak in the air.

Scientific wonders never weary. Experiments in Arizona show that the earth is constantly bombarded by microscopic meteors, some traveling 100 miles per second. That seems fast, but is slow compared with the speed of light, also an aggregation of "corpuscular meteors" that travel 186,000 miles per second.

The tiny 100-mile per second meteors striking our earth are so small they don't hurt us. Perhaps they do us good.

CLUE IN WASHINGTON

The murders of Mrs. Ilsley and her maid were brutally executed. Her brother Paul Boeing found the bodies when he came to his sister's house for breakfast yesterday.

He had been living in the larger of the two houses on the Ilsley estate. Mrs. Ilsley lived in the smaller house, back of the manor house and off the road.

Both bodies bore signs of a terrific struggle. An iron bootjack was used as a weapon by the slayer. One sharp edge of the instrument corresponded with the clean, long gash in Mrs. Ilsley's forehead. The bootjack was taken by Washington police, along with a doorjamb fragment.

Until recently the house in which Paul Boeing has been living was rented by Katrina McCormick, daughter of Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, former member of Congress and internationally prominent socially.

Middleburg is a center for horse-loving society. Estates, many with private race tracks and steeplechase courses, dot the surrounding landscape.

The fox hunts there draw internationally known sportsmen and women. A member of the Middleburg Hunt Club, Mrs. Ilsley kept a string of hunters and until recently, show horses.

Washington Suspect Is Cleared in Case

Washington, Jan. 14 (INS)—Investigation of a colored suspect picked up here in connection with the murder in Middleburg of Mrs. Spencer Ilsley and her maid, Mrs. Anne Buckner, revealed he had no connection with the case, police said early today.

The man registered as Melvin Crawford, 28, and answered the general description of George Crawford, sought as the slayer of Mrs. Ilsley and her maid.

"This man has no connection with the Middleburg case," police headquarters reported. "We are holding him because one of the remarks he made under questioning gave us the idea he may be wanted somewhere else."

JEALOUSY LED TO GIRL'S DEATH

Bellefonte, Pa., Jan. 14 (AP)—An inquest in the death chamber of Rockview Penitentiary established that Fred Collins, 37, Negro convict and psychopathic patient, killed Betty Hickok, daughter of a prison doctor, because of jealousy.

Collins said he resented "attententions" the 22-year-old daughter of Dr. A. L. Hickok, head of the prison psychopathic ward, had given another Negro prisoner Henry Malone. Both were trusties employed as servants in the Hickok home.

AUTOISTS WILL NOT SLOW DOWN

Detroit, Jan. 14 (AP)—An American road builders association committee has reached the conclusion that the motoring public has no intention of slowing down and that it is up to highway engineers to build fool-proof roads.

PRESIDENT 'TOO COMPLACENT' FOR PAPER

Call Medical Care for Students Inadequate; Physicians Are Not on Duty Long Enough

President Lowell, Stillman Infirmary, and the student medical service at Harvard, came in for scathing denunciation today in both the news and editorial columns of the Harvard Crimson official university organ.

The infirmary was pronounced "inadequate." President Lowell "complacent" and doctors guilty of "bad diagnoses."

"Believing that the conditions of medical science to students in the university are of so serious a nature as to merit careful attention, the Crimson is presenting a series of articles, comparing Harvard's medical equipment and personnel with that of other colleges," the comments explain.

"HIS USUAL COMPLACENY"

"In that section of his annual report devoted to medical care of the students President Lowell expressed general satisfaction with the existing situation," the editorial continues:

"Because his is the usual complacent sentiment expressed in official pronouncements on the medical situation, the Crimson feels it necessary to express a view in opposition to the President's."

The infirmary was then cited as efficient in 1901, the year of its start, and contrasted with today to show its "marked inadequacy."

"On the staff there are five physicians, not one of whom gives his full services to the college," the editorial continued.

"The regular hours that a doctor is in attendance to consult with students totals about two a day. Brevity in consultation is essential under these circumstances.

HEALTH IS A TRUST

"All doctors are occasionally guilty of bad diagnoses, but when time is limited and numbers large the opportunity for error is increased.

"The situation is aggravated by the fact that the whole sum allowed for running expenses and salaries is only $22,564.40, the interest on the Henry K. Oliver bequest.

"The university contributes nothing, save to pay a possible deficit.

"Student health is as great a trust as student education. To forsake it for any reason is as much an educational as a medical violation of faith."

The news story cited the resignation of Dr. T. K. "Tommy" Richards last summer as a result of the necessity the doctors face in supplementing from private practice the salary which the university gives.

Honolulu Fights 'Slur' on Island Judge

Honolulu, Jan. 14 (AP)—After calling a special session of the Territorial Legislature to consider Honolulu's crime situation, Gov. Lawrence M. Judd turned to defending himself against congressional blame for the present state of affairs.

Meanwhile a new case of attempted assault upon a woman attracted attention along with the grand jury session tomorrow to consider indictment of a society matron, a navy lieutenant and two enlisted men accused of killing an assailant of the officer's young wife.

Philander B. Gray, 31-year-old Texan, was arrested yesterday, officers said, while he was struggling with a 21-year-old Portuguese woman. She preferred charges.

The Legislature was called to meet next Monday. Its primary consideration is expected to be reorganization of Honolulu's police department, which has been widely criticized as inefficient and subject to political manipulation.

JUDD IS AROUSED

Immediately after calling the special session, Gov. Judd sent to Secretary Wilbur of the Interior Department a strongly worded protest against criticism in the House naval sub-committee of instructions to the jury which tried five men on charges of attacking the bride of Lieut. Thomas H. Massie.

He promised a detailed reply after he had conferred today with Judge A. M. Cristy, who is returning from Hilo, Hawaii, with "material facts" in one of the cases being studied by the sub-committee.

IT HAD TO COME, SAYS DOROTHY MACKAILL

Romances of "Beach Boys" With Visitors Brought on the Present Turmoil in Islands

(Editor's Note — Dorothy Mackaill, famous British actress, who has become an American film star, and who has been a frequent visitor on the Hawaiian Islands, has written for International News Service her explanation of the turmoil in the "Paradise of the Pacific.")

By DOROTHY MACKAILL

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 14 (INS)—It had to come!

The "beach boys"—really full grown Kanakas—that is to say pure-blooded Hawaiians—have had many romances with rich American women who have come to the islands as tourists and been enthralled with its Edenlike fascination.

These affairs have been invited by the white women visitors. The "beach boys" have been spoiled by so many American women paying attention to them. By contrast they are extremely deferential when made to realize their inferiority.

Dorothy Mackaill

The killing of Kahahawai is deplorable. It is a tribute to the real Hawaiian people that none of the men accused of attacking Mrs. Massie was a Kanaka. The five men were mixed breed.

And let me say right now that the mixed element now on the island of Oahu is living dynamite.

New York, Jan. 14 (AP)—Elsie Janis, 42, who was married New Year's eve to Gilbert Wilson, 26, of Los Angeles, said today the only reason why she hadn't told about it before was that no one had asked her.

"No one asked us if we were married," she said. "They just asked us if we were engaged, and I said I never would be engaged."

The actress and Wilson were married at the home of Mayor Lehman of Tarrytown, where Miss Janis has an estate.

"We walked up the hill to Mayor Lehman's house, and we were married by Police Judge Daniel Dwyer," she said. "The mayor was the witness.

"Then we walked down the hill again, and my colored mammy, who has been with me 25 years, gave us her blessing. That was all there was to it."

RAIL AND UNION HEADS IN WAGE CUT PARLEY

Chicago, Jan. 14 (INS)—Railroading history was being made here today.

Representatives of all the union rail workers and representatives of all the principal railroads met to discuss wage and employment problems.

The meeting is the first of its nature in railroad history.

The nine rail executives, three each from the East, West and South, were expected to ask the union men to accept a 10 per cent wage reduction.

The wage cut is acceptable to union leaders, it was reported today, provided the rail executives adopt a program proposed by the labor forces for improving working conditions and relieving unemployment.

Labor heads are also demanding stabilization of present employment, that workers may be assured of an income. They are also expected to ask for a six-hour day as a means of reducing unemployment.

Rail executives are expected to offer a large portion of the estimated $250,000,000 savings realized by the wage cut, toward reopening shops and resuming work on rights of way, as a means of relieving the unemployment situation.

FATHER OF FIVE PENS SUICIDE LETTER

Pittsburgh, Jan. 14 (AP)—A note and an overcoat found on the Smithfield st. bridge today caused police to believe that C. R. Mitchell, former Pittsburgh newspaper reporter, drowned himself in the Monongahela river.

The note was addressed to Mitchell's five children. His wife is dead. It was written partly with a typewriter and partly with a pen.

"Buddy: I guess you would be better off if the old man kicked off," it read. "The call downtown did not mean anything and I cannot make the end. You kids will be better off without me.

"Mother and dad will take a couple of you, and Chris and Bob will help out some. Good-bye, Nap, nobody loves you but dad . . . And Frank and Vera . . . my boys . . . take care of Mary Lou . . . I've gone to see your mother . . ."

OLD WINTER TO PUT SPRING ON SPOT

The violets that bloom in the spring—tra-la—will be frozen stiff tonight.

But in the meantime the mercury rose to 62, one degree under the high mark for this date.

Old Man Winter served notice through the Weather Bureau today that he's going to take the upstart, Spring, for a ride. And it may be a sleighride.

Combing the violets out of his whiskers and rubbing his eyes after a quiet at the thermometer, Old Pressnmup beat his chest and roared that no dame was going to muscle in on his territory—not if he knew it.

Meanwhile, as he summoned his forces, the gentle zephyrs continued to zephyr from the southwest, the heavies continued to itch like all get out and the steam heater was doing a hadoo. Coal dealers searched for jagged pieces of glass with which to cover acres and clothing merchan's became Napoleons.

"It'll be colder tonight and colder tomorrow and you might as well give the go-by to that wench till March," he warned.

With the mercury in the 60's, the boys played baseball in Rutland, Vt., where usually, this time of year, you can freeze ice cubes on the kitchen range.

In Uxbridge, Oliver Lizotte and John Cashman (both teeto'alers) killed a five-foot snake.

BOSTON-ALBANY AIRWAY LINE APPROVED

Washington, Jan. 14 (AP)—The Commerce Department announced today a licensed airway had been authorized from Albany to Boston, by way of Springfield.

Col. Clarence M. Young, assistant secretary for aeronautics, said the survey and subsequent construction operation might be somewhat slowed by winter weather and that the route, which is 121 miles long, probably would not be completed before late summer.

The Postoffice Department has awarded a night air mail contract between Albany, Springfield and Boston, but operations have been withheld pending longer days and establishment of lighting facilities.

FREES 2 SEIZED AT CITY HALL

Waxman testified he was really out of work, sincere in his appeal and had no intention of breaking the law.

Placing the cases on file, Judge Good told the defendants he had great sympathy for their predicament, but they must obey the law.

PUTS BLAME ON WHITE WOMEN

It is a racial mixture of Japanese, Portuguese, Chinese and Polynesian. What can we expect of these people when they see Kanakas openly receiving attentions of American white women?

It is little short of disgraceful to see how some white women lie on the beach at Waikiki, in abbreviated bathing suits and permit the "beach boys" to rub them with cocoanut oil so they will get a good tan.

White women can easily lose all sense of moral balance in the South Seas, and they get the first touch of it in the Hawaiian Islands. They encourage the attentions of the "beach boys" all too frequently and then go with the auto the Luaus.

THINKS IT SMART

These are native feasts where roast pig and typical Hawaiian food is served, also native liquor, the infamous okolehao, which is distilled from rice. These luaus sometimes last several days and are highlighted with Hawaiian hula dancing.

White women often think it is quite smart to attend these affairs and that it will give them something to talk about when they return to the states.

It's really a shame that all this trouble and mess has happened, for the islands are so beautiful and the true Hawaiians and those who have intermarried with white people are such a happy lot.

They are always enjoying themselves with music and eating, leaving work until another day. I honestly believe if anyone would start running down the streets there, people would stare from home windows in amazement an dwonder at such vivacity.

There is always an undercurrent of dislike which borders on hatred between the Hawaiians and the Japanese and other Orientals. They never get along together.

The Hawaiians, and those who have married into white families, are a very proud people. They are so kind and hospitable and are so willing to show you a good time.

Since they live in the lazy atmosphere in the tropics, most of them are exotic and fat.

But the Orientals who spend so much time in the water and on the beach are sort of "half baked." They seem to be a little off mentally.

The part of the island which now Head, is really a beautiful point not far from Waikiki Beach. It is in a very settled place and hundreds of people have visited it for the marvelous view.

FOUND ROMANCE THERE

I am not afraid of Hawaii now, although I know this outcry will ruin the island for a time. However, I wouldn't be afraid to go there tomorrow. I love the place, the music. Really you have never heard Hawaiian music until you hear it played by natives in their proper setting.

When I can I am going back for another visit. I guess one thing that makes me love the place so much more is because I met my husband, Neil A. Miller, there. He was superintendent of a plantation when I met him on one of my trips.

It seemed funny in a way for me to leave Hollywood and go to Hawaii and there fall in love with a native Californian. But that's the way things happen.

EXCELLENT NEWS FROM J. M. KEYNES —FOR 2032

By GILBERT SELDES

ABOUT A YEAR AGO, when we were all enjoying the illusion that things couldn't be worse, an article by John Maynard Keynes appeared in the Saturday Evening Post; and this was startling because Mr. Keynes is much more at home in The New Republic and The Nation, which have supported his views on the Versailles Treaty and respected his views on reparations; but more startling still was the fact that Mr. Keynes, "a Cassandra who could never influence the course of events in time," was definitely optimistic. Harcourt, Brace & Company, on the eve of publishing a collection of Mr. Keynes' "croakings," reminds us of this optimism with a quotation from the same, or a similar, piece. "Mankind," says Mr. Keynes, "is solving its economic problem. I would predict that the standard of life in progressive countries one hundred years hence will be between four and eight times as high as it is today. The economic problem may be solved, or be at least within sight of solution, within a hundred years."

Defeated Thinkers

It is as well not to delude ourselves. Nine out of ten intelligent men, disturbed or defeated by the events of the past two years, have lost whatever sense of historical proportion they ever had, and are convinced that the economic problem has definitely grown so complicated that it no longer can be solved. They may hope for an interval of security, just as a speculator hopes for a turn in stocks which, lasting two or three days, may make him a small fortune; but they have shown no signs of thinking beyond the present emergency. They seem to believe that the whole history of the world culminated in October, 1929, and because that was a disaster, the entire course of history was a mistake.

This looseness of mental fibre, this intellectual defeatism, make Keynes' conclusion all the more significant. Grant that he is wrong in the lapse of time through which we must still muddle; the idea that the economic problem can be solved is of tremendous importance. Neither capitalist nor Communist has ever promised so much, content with offering a better system than those of the past, or a system more just to certain classes. Karl Marx and a few less practical systematizers of economics have looked forward, or have let us look forward, to a time when the economic problem would eliminate itself, when automatically the mere business of making a living would cease to depress the world. Now an unorthodox, but tremendously sound, economist tells us the same thing.

And from the fact that the problem may be solved, Keynes deduces the further and far more impressive principle that "the economic problem is not the permanent problem of the human race." I haven't the whole article by me and am not sure that Keynes ever did say what the permanent problem is; whatever it is, it cannot help having more dignity, being more noble than the problems of labor and profit, of bargaining and exploiting, of seeking advantage and struggling with ledgers.

Respect for Money

I say this with no trace of contempt for business, trade, industry and commerce. Like a great many professional writers, I have, at times, the feeling that I should have been happier (and doing work more worthy of respect, including my own) if I manufactured shoes or sold milk; like a great many professionals in all the arts, I have even the illusion that I might have been very good at business. (Business men have the contrary illusion, and Philadelphia Jack O'Brien is giving a violin recital.) Even the smallest business, the dingiest candy store, the most fly-blown restaurant, represents such a fund of human endeavors, hopes, disasters and fulfilments, that the contempt of the artist is an impertinence. What I despise, what every man of humane feelings should despise, is the necessity of working so hard and thinking so exclusively of making money, that the entire purpose, which is to lead a life of some leisure, of some enjoyment, and of a full exercise of all our decent capacities—that purpose is in the nature of things defeated.

A man timidly or hopefully, takes the savings of 10 years, gives up his job and starts a grocery store, because he wants to build a better home for his wife and children. If the conditions (the economic problems) are such that he can never rest, can never afford for his children a playful hour, for his wife a kind word or a visit to the movies, for himself a conversation with a neighbor in which he is not secretly wondering whether he can get some profit out of his neighbor—then that business is a failure, no matter if, in the end, he sells out for half a million to a chain store. The doctor who has to add a job with an insurance company or one with the city, to supplement his income, and hasn't time even to read the professional journals and learn what medicine has accomplished since he went to college, is losing the one most valuable thing he brought to the community. For these and for millions of others the economic problem is so dominant that no others occur.

"Perfect—Perfect"

About a hundred years ago Edward Everett (the gentleman whose speech at Gettysburg was preferred to Lincoln's) said: "Our government is in its theory perfect, and in its operation it is perfect also. Thus we have solved the great problem in human affairs." It seemed at that time to be true. For the world had been so oppressed by political injustice that a government fairly representative (women had no votes) and fairly honest, offered, to those who enjoyed it, Paradise on earth. But oppression is a shifty power; drive it out of one seat it finds itself another, and today it overbears us through economic control. Naturally we think that if that problem were solved we should be for ever content.

I doubt it. Happiness hasn't invariably attended wealth, although the cynics will not admit this, because it seems to them a plea for the superior benefits of poverty. I suspect that the permanent problems of the human race are the mysterious ones we call personal, those which neither governments nor trade unions can solve. The hope Keynes holds out to us is that governments or trade unions, financiers or Soviets, will set us free from the mean problems which keep our lives thin and meagre and unsatisfied; so that we can devote ourselves to problems which are more fitting for human beings to worry about—especially more fitting because they probably have no specific answer, and merely thinking about them and living with them are satisfactions in themselves.

R. K. O. PASSES UNDER RADIO CORP. CONTROL

New York, Jan. 14 (AP)—By completing arrangements to advance $10,000,000 to the Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corp. to meet payment of its maturing debenture bonds, majority control of R-K-O's capital will pass to the Radio Corp. of America, it was revealed today.

Other stockholders of R-K-O, it was stated, failed to exercise their rights under a refinancing plan announced several weeks ago. As a result, they were penalized 75 per cent of their stock equity, under the plan. By advancing the necessary money Radio Corp. will increase its interest in R-K-O from 9 per cent to 66 per cent of R-K-O's capital stock.

The $127,000,000 Radio-Keith Co. is one of the four largest motion picture and entertainment companies in this country. To meet financing needs, the company on Dec. 12, 1931, offered $11,500,000 of its debenture bonds and 1,740,000 shares of new common stock to its stockholders.

Only $1,500,000 of the debentures, it was stated, were absorbed by stockholders other than Radio Corp., which consented to absorb the balance of approximately $10,000,000.

Mine Union Head, 77, Is Jailed for Life

MUSSOLINI IN APPEAL TO U. S. ON WAR DEBT

Rome, Jan. 14 (INS)—Premier Mussolini today made a second sensational appeal for abolition of all war debts, this time addressing it directly to the United States.

In an editorial in his personal organ, Popolo d'Italia, he asks the United States:

"The time for Ruhr-like occupations is over," the editorial said. "There is one way of escape—European countries should begin by mutually giving up all debts and credits.

"Then the European debtors should present a united front to America and ask cancellation of their debts. It is in the interest of the United States to complete the gesture by renunciation.

"Americans would not like to appear in the history of mankind as the only profiteer of the World War."

"... ENRICHES THE NATURAL FLAVOR OF Chops"

M. Cretaux shows how Gulden's gives subtle goodness to food

"It's wonderful. How in the world did you make it?" That's the greatest tribute to cooking skill, for it means that you've mastered the art of giving deliciousness to ordinary dishes.

Chefs are famous for this—and Roger Cretaux, chef of the Hotel Roosevelt in New York City, shows you how they achieve distinction, in his popular recipe for Split Pork Chops. "Just split the pork chop so it will open like a book. Now spread the inside generously with Gulden's Prepared Mustard. Close the sides with 2 toothpicks. Season with salt and pepper and cook slowly in butter."

You'll find that every drop of Gulden's gives millions of atoms of "subtle" flavor to the food you serve. Spread it over roasts, steaks and chops before cooking to bring out a wonderful hidden richness—add it to sauces and gravies.

The choicest mustard seeds are mixed with rare and savory spices in Gulden's. Each golden drop spreads through the food while it cooks, enriching the natural flavor, giving it extra goodness.

SYSTEM FAILED LENZ, SAYS MRS. CULBERTSON

Following is final of a series of articles by Josephine Culbertson, wife of Ely Culbertson and with him the originator of the approach-forcing system of contract bridge:

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

World's Greatest Woman Bridge Player. Written Especially for the Boston Evening American

Copyright, 1932, by International News Service

New York, Jan. 14—The efficiency of a system of contract bidding, as of a system of life, is measured by what it does, not only when you are riding on the crest of luck and everything breaks in your favor, but when it meets the ordinary situations.

Judged by this standard, it is, I think, clearly apparent from a study of the hands and the results of the match that the official system failed to meet the test.

Through its use, our very skillful opponents frequently landed in the wrong contract and thereby either suffered a penalty or failed to realize the true value of the cards they held.

Take as an example this hand, played by Commander Liggett for a spectacular loss through the use of this system.

Commander Liggett's bid of one spade was passed all around, and as Mr. Lenz laid down the dummy cards he remarked:

"I am just short of a raise."

After the hand was played, Commander Liggett stated his hand was "just shy of a two-bid." No doubt both were right, using the official system, but had they been using the approach-forcing system they would have had no difficulty in reaching the makeable game in spades.

South would have opened, as Commander Liggett did, with a bid of one spade; West would have passed, and North, in keeping with the third cornerstone of the approach-forcing system—"Do not pass partner's opening one-bid in a suit when there is no intervening adverse bid, except with a blank hand"—would have bid two spades, as the hand contains at least three playing tricks in support of spades.

THE ONLY SYSTEM

The North player could easily vision a South hand as strong as that held in this case and yet not strong enough to justify any other bid than the ideal bid of one. After a bid of two spades by North, it would indeed be a timid South who would not carry the contract to game.

My review of the bidding and play has been necessarily limited to the more unusual features. After playing in the match throughout nearly two-thirds of it and analyzing the hands played at the other sessions in which I did not participate, I am more strongly convinced than ever before that the approach-forcing system of contract bidding is the only system whereby precise information may be conveyed to the partner and accurate inferences drawn by that partner from your bids.

When such experts as Mr. Lenz, Mr. Jacoby and Commander Liggett failed to make a system work satisfactorily, it must be because no one could.

Portland, Me., Jan. 14 (AP)—The list of Republican aspirants to succeed Gov. Gardiner reached six today with the inclusion of the name of Lewis O. Barrows, executive councillor of Newport.

The other five contenders are Senate President Burleigh Martin of Augusta, Commissioner of Agriculture Frank P. Washburn, State Senator Arthur G. Spear of Portland, former State Senator Frank W. Carlton of Woolwich and Alfred K. Ames of Machias. Two Democrats, James B. Perkins of Boothbay Harbor, and Louis J. Brann of Lewiston, have signified their intention of seeking the Democratic nomination.

For Deep Coughs
Or Colds Where It Will Pay You
To Be Sure

Creomulsion is made to do the utmost for a cough or cold. It combines seven major helps in one—the best helps known to science. It is for quick relief, for safety, when the cough seems deep.

Mild coughs may yield to a lesser help—to some single factor, maybe. But no one can tell which factor will do most for any certain cough. And all coughs should be stopped at once. So careful people, more and more, give Creomulsion for any cough that starts.

The cost is a little more than some helps. But it means a seven-way help—the best men know. And it costs you nothing if it fails to bring the quick relief you seek. Your druggist guarantees it.

MALDEN'S YOUNG GRANDMA

MRS. SILLIKER LOIS ANNE CASSIDY MRS. CASSIDY

Los Angeles' 35-year-old grandmother is getting a lot of competition in these parts—for here is a woman who was a grandmother at 34. She is Mrs. Georgina Silliker, of 245 Eastern ave., Malden. Her daughter is Mrs. Elver Cassidy, Brockton. The baby is Lois Anne Cassidy.

MALDEN WOMAN GRANDMA AT 34

Another claimant for the title of the youngest grandmother came to the fore today when Mrs. Georgina Silliker, of 245 Eastern ave., Malden, announced that she was a grandmother at the age of 34.

Mrs. Silliker has two sons and two daughters, one of the latter being Mrs. Elver Cassidy, 19, of Linden st., Brockton, who married at 16 and had a baby girl at 17.

Lois Ann Cassidy, two, the grandchild, probably has one of the youngest great-grandmothers in Mrs. Margaret Fisher, of Lefts ter., Stoneham, Mrs. Silliker's mother, who is 52.

THE VOICE OF BROADWAY

By LOUIS SOBOL

Why?

Don't ask me what inspires our secret inner yearnings. I mean why some brokers would give their right arms to be theatrical producers, why a person like Helen Morgan would rather be a poet than anything else on earth; why Fred Allen, the comedian, aspires to write magazine articles; why Fred Stone's secret ambition is to be a farmer; why Sam Shipman, the playwright, would like to be a pianist—O, I can name any number of people whose ambitions lie along widely diversified directions—anything, in fact, but what they're doing. Up to the age of 10, for instance, I wanted to drive a coal wagon because I saw my mother tip the fellow who delivered coal to us. This isn't as aimless as you might think. It's all the way of prelude to an interesting letter I've received. From a fellow whose grandfather was the Baron E. V. S. Calcagus who brought General Garibaldi to this country 59 years ago. The lad studied architecture. He helped plan the new Ziegfeld Theater, the Paramount Hotel, the Keith's Memorial in Boston, and various Loew's theaters. He designed and supervised the construction of the Raven Hall and Coast swimming pools at Coney Island and constructed a $200,000 pool and building on the Washington, D. C., airport for Amelia Earhart and others. Only 26, mind you, and he's done all this. And now he writes in to ask me if I won't listen in to him Saturday over a certain radio station where he's to make his debut as a baritone soloist. He wants to chuck his entire career to go on the stage. Will I help? You answer that one.

Unfinished Symphony!

A contortionist named Willie Wetzel
Once tied himself up like a pretzel;
I'm sorry to state
He found out too late—
(Well, let's see YOU find a word to rhyme with pretzel!)
—Harold M. Bone.

Don't Forget the H'accent!

The enterprising Mr. Leonard Lyons has compiled a few more words for his forthcoming "Dictionary of a Hollywood Producer," and here they are:

GANDER—A famous Hindu who wears a tablecloth.

BUDDHA—A lady's bedroom.

MALADY—Something like Irving Berlin writes.

OCCIDENTAL—Not on purpose.

SALACIOUS—Articles that can be sold.

ORIFICE—Where you meet salesmen.

VENISON—An Italian who lives in a city where they've got water in the street.

MISSILE—A very small girl.

VERSION—The kind of girl we used to know in the old days.

MANACLE—Half a pair of eyeglasses, usually worn by English dukes.

ULCER—A long overcoat.

Shrewd Connecticut!

Speaking of auto markers and low numbers as we were, perhaps a dozen colyums ago, it now appears that Connecticut has solved the situation effectively by introducing the idea of having two letters—one above the other, preceding the number. As a result, if you applied early enough and your name was Louis Sobol, you might be lucky enough to have a marker labelled L S-15. But what is more to the point is that the police cars in New Haven have drawn the following letters preceding the number—B O. Hey, hey!

K. R. Revenge!

Whether it's a new or old tale, I don't know, but I still like it because tales about the versatile Noel Coward are usually interesting. And so, perhaps, it's no news that years ago, when Coward's first dramatic effort, "Queen of the Parlor," I think it was, opened in London, the audience hissed and booed—but they did more than that. As he passed out, some of the lads and gels in the pit spat at him. He never forgot that—nor forgave—and so when, years later, his "The Year of Grace" premiered and was received with tumultuous acclaim and loud cries of "Author, Author," Coward wasn't to be found. Not until the excitement had died down, and then an usher discovered him way up near the roof of the house, leaning over and hissing at the audience. She paid no particular fuss about it until she looked a little closer—and beheld him—spitting down on the heads of the cheering customers. It was Noel Coward's revenge.

Definition!

During breathing spells at our mutual broadcast Sunday night Sophie Tucker took time off to tell a story about her little nephew in Philadelphia. "You know, Aunt Sophie," he said seriously, "I've been making a terrible mistake—and I only found out the other day when mother told me. I always thought a millionaire meant a bum."

"Don't let anything your mother told you," answered Aunt Sophie, "change your mind!"

Girl About Town

—By ALYCE SIEMENS—

Rehearsal

During Wednesday afternoon's dress rehearsal of the Symphonic Pageant, which was presented at Symphony Hall last evening, most of the men in the troupe, who had left their business offices to be Colorful Figures in Tableaux, were becoming a bit weary of the rehearsing . . . Then suddenly that "Gypsy Dance" tableau was put into rehearsal . . . How they perked up when vivacious Lydia Fuller clicked her merry heels and castanets . . . And how they cheered as she finished . . . Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller seemed delighted with the progress made . . . And Miriam Winslow rushed in for a few moments to give her artistic approval of Miss Lydia's dancing . . . Miriam's dark head swayed rhythmically as Fiedler brought up the tempo . . . By the bye, have you noted how Mr. Fiedler's locks fly as he directs? . . . He's so fascinating to watch," whispers a stunning girl behind us . . . Other whispers: "Mrs. Norman Greeley's white wig came from Paris"—"Isn't Mrs. Ralph Hornblower a real Pilgrim woman, though!" . . .

More Rehearsal Notes

Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Pitman stops to tell Mrs. George S. Parker, "My dear, you look 10 years younger in that powdered wig and bouffant gown!" . . . Mrs. Eliot Spalding, who sponsored that lovely first tableau (The Mozart one), nibbles on sweet chocolate given to her by William Mayo—who is thoughtfully supplying his fellow-performers with a nibble-lunch . . . And we hear he used to be in the movies! . . . Betty Spaulding, adorable in rose satin . . . And we note that olden days or no olden days she's wearing the little gold football on her bracelet . . . Loyal Betty! . . . And the jolly old monks calling for ciggies! . . . Ph. Fowler tells us not to miss "El Jaleo," in which Charlotte White dances to Ravel's "Bolero," so finished and primitive at once, that tune! . . . We must get about, and as we pass the make-up room we spy the Misses Upton and Conlon giving their painstaking makeup work a last glance . . . They did the Mozart group's cosmeticing . . . And young Lee Barrett is telling his mother, Mrs. Waldo E. Barrett, "Why, mother, I hardly think you need bother about putting hatpins in a Yankee Doodle Boy's hat!" . . .

Lucky In Cruises

Don't know what it means to be lucky in winning cruises, but at all events, the Girl-About-Town had the lucky program-number at the Symphonic Pageant, and won a 16-day cruise through the West Indies on the Conte Grande which they tel lus is as grand as its name . . . We're going to try and get away . . . Yes, we suppose, it'll be a case of that—try and do it! . . . Lloyd Sabaudo Line donated the trip . . . Which was first prize of several won at society's marvelous presentation of tableaux which came to life . . .

Poking About

That blonde girl in the bright red gown and evening wrap who had all eyes on her in the State Theater lobby the other evening was Greta Taylor, who poses for smart magazine ads . . . She was around to catch a talkie starring Gloria Swanson, a friend of hers, before going to a party in Brookline . . . Most distinguished-looking cafe cashier is the night man in a lunchroom next the Tremont Theater . . . Take a peek and see if you don't agree . . . Mrs. Paul Hillery, of Cambridge, is very proud of her husband's new title of alderman, they tell us . . . And will entertain for him tonight, with many theatrical folks at the party . . . Fred Allen's wife, Portland Hoffa, very unhappy, not having seen a single gangster shot in Chicago . . . Woburn's Millie Joyce spent the holidays in New York, and devoted most of her time there to the thrilling pursuit of standing outside the St. Moritz trying to get a peek at "Gabless Greta" Garbo . . . Mrs. Reginald Boardman, of Boston, now at Palm Beach, writes friends telling them how utterly exciting it was when she attended a boxing show down there . . . Hugh Nawn and his wife Florida-bound . . . The John Raskob, Jrs., who left Boston to make their home in Dayton, O., spending a good deal of time making trips to see friends at Fort Wayne, Ind.

From Our Memo Pad

Beacon st.'s Mrs. George Warren has a list of pet charities a yard long! . . . She built the chapel for the Y. W. C. A., among many, many other things . . . How's this for the name of a building? . . . The Born Building, located at Medford Hillside . . . One realtor tells us that some of the buildings he could tell of should be tagged the Died Building . . . You might care to know that Lupe Velez' first name is pronounced "Lu-pay," but few ever get it right . . . And Lupe doesn't give a darn whether folks get it right or not.

Film Epics at State, Keith's

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Out of yesterday come the stars for the Metropolitan stage tomorrow. With Tetrazzini of the opera and Eva Tanguay from the "I don't care" era in vaudeville, the footlight program appears an outstanding one. Stars of the past make up the unit headed by Miss Tanguay, the ever young and peppy. Years ago these folk were headliners, and now they come again to show they still have voice and nimble feet.

* * *

Mme. Tetrazzini carries the glories of her achievements in grand opera. She has been brought on as a special attraction, apart from the Tanguay group, and music-lovers, especially oldtimers, will probably be delighted to hear her again. Her numbers will be arias which she has sung in opera houses on both sides of the ocean. Her voice is still wondrously rich, according to recent announcement.

There was a day when Eva Tanguay had a following of her own, in numbers akin to a movie star's devotees. She is declared to be the youngest of the troupe of veterans. The oldest, name not known at this writing, is 75.

* * *

Uncle Sam lent a generous hand in the making of "Hell Divers," featured on the State screen tomorrow, another in the Loew Festival list. Friends who have seen it tell us that it is a strikingly realistic and beautiful picture, excellently acted. Its cast has names—Wallace Beery, Clark Gable, and Marjorie Rambeau among others. Beery and Gable will draw the fans anyway; and Miss Rambeau is an unusually gifted actress, some years ago regarded by many as the best on the American stage.

* * *

To the RKO Keith screen comes Barbara Stanwyck, always an interesting performer. The vehicle is "Forbidden," the story of a girl who uses up her savings on one wild holiday. She meets romance and entanglements; the stork visits her, life's web enmeshes her more and more, until there are two men in her life, and one of these she slays. It's a picture that should spell box office for the house for this coming week.

"In the Next Room" at Copley Monday

Announced for next Monday evening at the Copley is "In the Next Room," mystery melodrama which scored a few seasons ago as one of the most thrilling and exciting since "The Bat." The cast includes Enid Romany, Richard Whorf.

STARS OF STAGE AND SCREEN FEATURE NEW PROGRAMS

Barbara Stanwyck and little Myrna Fresholtz in a scene from "Forbidden," which has its premiere on the RKO Keith's screen tomorrow. Adolphe Menjou is also in the cast.

Cornelia Otis Skinner, famous "one person show" actress, opens at Wilbur, Sunday

Marjorie Rambeau and Clark Gable in "Hell Divers," opening at the State tomorrow.

Getting on the Band Wagon

Fred and Adele Astaire, stars of "The Band Wagon," successful musical revue which comes here fresh from New York to the Colonial for an engagement beginning Monday, January 18, are unique among personalities of the stage, not only for their dancing, singing and comedy talents, but because they are among the very few brother-and-sister combinations who have ever won unusual success on the stage. Born in Omaha, around the beginning of the current century, Fred and Adele began to take dancing lessons in their home town at the respective ages of five and six.

Adele Astaire

Audray Roslyn in Piano Recital at Jordan Hall

Miss Audray Roslyn, pianist, will give a recital tonight, at 8:15 o'clock, in Jordan Hall. Her program follows:

Sonata D, major, Baldassare Galuppi; Aria, C minor, Padre Martini; Gigue, B flat minor, Karl Heinrich Graun; Fuga, C minor, Girolamo Frescobaldi; Sonata, G minor, Schumann; Nocturne, Opus 27, No. 1, Etude, Opus 10, No. 8, Fantaisie, F. minor, Chopin; The Knight of the Black Pool, Louis Gruenberg.; Notturno, Charles T. Griffes; Toccata (from "Four Piano Pieces"), Marion Bauer; An Etching, from Suite, "Once Upon a Time," Harold Morris; and Valse-Impromptu, Rhapsodie Hongroise, No. 10, Liszt.

Exeter Theater

Leo Carrillo in "The Guilty Generation" and Seth Parker in "Way Back Home" are the attractions at the Exeter for the remainder of the week.

Bach Music for First Schelling Program

For the first of his four Young People's Concerts in Jordan Hall, January 16, Ernest Schelling will include in his program the "Overture to the Secret of Suzanne," by Wolf-Ferrari, Gavotte from Sonata for Violin in E-major, by Bach, in addition to works by Glazounow, Johann Strauss and Rossini. This program will feature the string instruments.

Ernest Schelling

Thad Barrows Again Chosen

Thad C. Barrows, international president of the Projectionist-Advisory Council and an authority on the technical end of motion pictures, again heads the Boston Movie Projectionists. At the meeting to elect officers, he was enthusiastically accorded the organization's highest honor.

James F. Burke was again chosen business representative, a tribute to him, as was the election to Barrows, for efficient service. Others chosen were Albert R. Moulton, financial secretary, Joseph Rosen, treasurer; Maurice Adelson, John Fulleck and Bernard McGaffigan, directors.

The Boston projectionists have a live-wire association, ranking with the best in the country. The members not only help their own fellows in distress, but always come gladly to the front to aid other charities. And in Barrows they have a president who is at the top of his profession. H. S.

M-G-M Gives Clark Gable New Contract With Boost in Salary

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Louella O. Parsons

Los Angeles, Jan. 14—The little old last year's contract that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer had with Clark Gable is due to be chucked into the fire. A new contract, with a substantial weekly raise in salary, will be handed Mr. Gable by Louis B. Mayer. The old one was signed when the amazingly popular Clark was yet to be discovered by the adoring fans and had still several years to run. But Clark asked for an increase and got it.

And here is why I think the Gable vogue will continue: There is no yipping on the part of Clark to be a star. He distinctly does not want to be starred. He prefers to play opposite Greta Garbo, Joan Crawford, Marion Davies and Norma Shearer.

Wanger's New Job

A very hot rumor comes whizzing straight to my desk from New York. Walter Wanger, who is suing Paramount for the $5000 a week salary he alleges is due him on his contract, is negotiating with Columbia. That isn't all. He is trying to buy Jack Cohn's interest in this flourishing independent company. If the deal goes through he will act as secretary and treasurer, remaining in New York to buy plays and sign talent. Harry Cohn, production boss of Columbia, is in New York now. What a combination—Cohn, Wanger there. Sounds swell to us.

New One for Carole

So much has been said about Paramount's failure to recognize the value of Carole Lombard's beauty and ability that apparently the little matter is going to be attended to pronto. Carole is now away on a trip with her husband, William Powell. When she returns she will be co-featured with Phillips Holmes in "The Beachcombers," story by Mildred Cram. William De Mille is to direct.

Together Again

There is no denying Winfield Sheehan had the right hunch about Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell. No matter in what picture these two were starred, they did a tremendous business. Winnie always felt it was good policy to select stories for them with equally important roles. I have an idea it was his suggestion before he became too ill to work to co-star Janet and Charlie in "Have a Heart." James Dunn, who has been successful in pictures with Sally Eilers, was to have played opposite Janet, but today word came that Janet and Charlie will be together again.

Things of Interest

Wallace Smith's trip aboard a tramp steamer. Wallace, an old-time Hearst newspaper man with a love of adventure that the movies have fostered, is taking his wife for a trip to the East Indies. He will be gone two or three months, and while he is away he will do the adaptation for "Blood and Wine," a coming Constance Bennett picture. The reasons for a party on the 17th of January is the opening of Lucile and Jimmy Gleason's stage play. Nancy Smith is giving them an after-theater party. I am reliably informed that the hot romance of Frances Dee and Joe Mankiewicz is colder than yesterday's newspaper. For well over a year the two have been "that way" about each other with talk of marriage. Oh well, it's better to discover the mistake before marriage than after.

Snapshots of Hollywood

"POP" WARNER telling me how much he enjoyed his New Year's party at the studio. POP, once a year, gives free dinners to all these who are hungry. RUTH CHATTERTON entertaining a young French actress and ANDRE LUGUET, noted French actor. Both RUTH and RALPH FORBES amazed how fast a story in which there is no truth, can travel, meaning the rumor of their separation. SARAH MASON, w. k. writer, remaining at Columbia under a new contract. MRS. JACK WARNER inviting a few people to dinner on the 23rd of this month. NANCY SMITH, DANNY THOMAS and LILLIAN BOND, breaking bread at the Embassy together. MISS BOND just signed for "Fireman Save My Child." MARGUINTE CHURCHILL postcarding friends she may remain in New York for a play. KEN MURRAY'S friends press-agenting his book, "Foolin' Around," which comes out January 15. It contains five short stories. SYLVIA SIDNEY lunching at the Brown Derby. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

CHENEY'S PSYLLIUM SEEDS

Sweep the Intestines Like a New Broom

Science has discovered the perfect regulator; the seeds of Psyllium Plantago. Perfect because they give bulk without roughage; they stimulate the intestines, but do not irritate. They are non-habit-forming. Like agar agar (but less expensive), they swell when moistened, making a slippery jelly that acts as a good lubricant to aid bowel movement. Easy to take—a tablespoonful at meal times, with water. These seeds swell in water and pass through the intestines smoothly, absorbing and carrying away the poisons. Used in the health resorts of Europe and America, we have imported a tremendous quantity, and are selling it at the

Injections of Liver Extract as Cure for Anemia

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 14 (AP)—A new and simplified treatment for pernicious anemia, eliminating many of the uncertainties and difficulties of present treatments, has been perfected by research scientists of the University of Michigan.

The new treatment involves intravenous injection of concentrated liver extract. Four to six injections have restored the blood count to normal. After the blood has been replenished with red corpuscles, it is possible to maintain this state by single injections at intervals of from four to six weeks.

The new treatment relieves the sufferer from any necessity of dieting and renders him comparatively free from constant medical attention.

ANGRY WIFE TO PUNCH NOSE OF SENOR LAOS

A militant spouse today theatened t oadd further complications to the already hectic and highly invo ved affairs of Senor Laos Lomer, self-styled Peruvian consul-general to New England, and Hugh J. Kelleher of Melrose, his attache extraordinaire.

Both have been in seclusion since early last night, and this is probably well for both, because the woman who styles herself as Mrs. Hugh J. Kelleher has threatened bodily harm to the attache and a vulgarian sock on the aristocratic nose of the senor.

Officials at the Copley-Plaza Hotel, from which the senor departed late yesterday with all his goods and chattels, revealed early today the new and perilous indignities which threatened the dynamic consul-general and his faithful attache.

Since early last night, they claim, a woman has been calling the hotel at intervals inquiring the whereabouts of Hugh J. Kelleher. Officials professed ignorance, telling her that the senor had left the hotel in high dudgeon late yesterday, taking all his trunks and baggage and leaving no forwarding address. And following him, as ever, was the same Hugh J. Kelleher. When the senor departed, he also departed.

Following this there were intermittent calls through the night and officials, becoming weary, asked her to desist. It was then she revealed her identity.

"This is Mrs. Kelleher," she said, in substance. "My husband hasn't been home for the last three days and I'm getting sick of it. Where is he? He'd better come home or I'll come and get him. I'll beat him up and I'll punch that South American in the nose."

SMALLPOX AT CONSERVATORY

Doctors called by the city vaccinated 145 persons, mostly girl students of the N. E. Conservatory of Music, early tday, fllwing discvery that Pol Planson, 48, a vocal teacher at the conservatory, had smallpox.

Dr. Francis E. Mahoney, city health commissioner, issued a statement advising all residents of the city to get vaccinated for "protection."

The students vaccinated live in the apartmetn house in Hemenway st. where Planson had rooms. Other students with whom the teacher came in contact in his classes may also be vaccinated.

Planson is believed to have contracted the disease while in Laconia, N. H., during the holidays. Just before he returned to Boston early this month, his brother was taken ill and late rit developed that he had smallpox.

The conservatory teacher was taken to City Hospital contagious department last Friday night. He was then thought to have chicken pox.

The Fitchburg Board of Health has issued orders that the entire population of 40,000 be vaccinated within the coming six days and clinics have been established for this purpose. There are 15 cases, all except one patient being adults.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

HULTMAN GONE? MAYBE JAPS COMING!

"I received a communication from the police commissioner written on Japanese vellum which costs $1.50 to $2 a pound. There is no way to justify the use of Japanese vellum at this or Curley's economy speech.

Staid and sturdy old Boston continued to shake to its very foundations today from the concussion of Mayor Curley's bombshell disclosure of horrible conditions in the office of Police Commissioner Hultman.

The commissioner couldn't be located and it was rumored he had sailed under cover of darkness for some remote South American port.

Possible international complications that may cause Japan to drop the Manchurian dispute and turn her attention in this direction were anticipated.

Whether Hultman keeps the Japanese vellum just for writing to the mayor or uses it in communications with division captans, patrolmen and his personal barber was not declosed.

That he should have dared to use it for any purpose was the subject of widespread criticism among leading figures today, as follows:

P. Phosporous Philimmy—So Gene is using that Jap vellum, huh? I don't wonder Mellon wants a tax increase.

Sim Stoodge—What is it, like shark fin soup?

REP. I VOTER AYSE—Them Japs will have us in trouble sure.

TATTEMUS T. TATTERTALL—He used vellum to write to the *or any other time."—From May-*Mayor? He should be removed.

A bill to place aerial transport under the interstate commerce commission has been introduced by Senator Bratton, Democrat, New Mexico. Besides the regulatory feature, Bratton would set up a declaration of national policy toward aviation development.

Never before, surely never again, can it happen! Human life is too precious. But this story demanded production. It was so great, it had to come to life! Lieut.-Com. Frank Wead, a retired naval officer wrote it. His love story is flung against a spectacular background hitherto unapproached for sheer thrill!

DIRECTED BY the man who made "THE BIG HOUSE"

George Hill, up to now, has enjoyed fame because of "The Big House." From now on you'll think of him as the man who made "Hell Divers."

You're Invited Aboard the Airplane Carrier Saratoga

Here is the miracle ship from whose deck bombing-planes rise like clouds of insects. What a setting for drama! From this deck goes the plane whose adventures reach into the life of a young girl, creating a situation of love and sacrifice to grip your soul!

It Took a Government to Help Make This Picture!

The U. S. Government loaned its Navy to help create an American Epic. Thanks to those men who knew no fear in making "Hell Divers" and to those government officials who made it possible to bring the public a Giant entertainment of modern times.

Hundreds of Bombing Planes! Ships and Men Uncounted! YOU WILL WITNESS THINGS never before seen on any screen!

WOMEN OF THE FLEET!

Easy prey for red-lips are sailormen ashore in Panama. But when Wallace Beery as "Windy" pays hard-boiled courtship to Marjorie Rambeau as "Mayme Kelso" you'll see something new in romances. Beery will give you many a hearty laugh. And a tear or two! What an actor!

With CONRAD NAGEL, DOROTHY JORDAN, MARJORIE RAMBEAU, MARIE PREVOST

LIBERALISM OF HOLMES NOT FANATICISM OF BORAH, POLITICIAN

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

MANY OF THE COMMENTATORS on the resignation of Mr. Justice Holmes say—according to the press—that their hope is that he will be replaced on the supreme bench of the United States by a liberal. They express this wish in a subdued sort of a way, as if they really haven't much hope. They probably really haven't. It is very doubtful whether Mr. Hoover may be classed as a liberal sufficiently to appoint a known liberal to the Supreme Court. One might rather expect from him such an appointment as Pierce Butler of Minnesota, whose appointment saddened the liberals a few years ago.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

Nevertheless, even Mr. Pierce Butler would be welcome, compared to some of the names offered as those of outstanding liberals. Senator Borah, for instance, and Senator Norris. To think of them at all shows a misreading of the term liberal and a bad misunderstanding of the capabilities and the attitude of mind of a jurist.

They are, in the first place, politicians, whose business and habit of mind it is to try to swing public opinion and secure votes for the needs and wishes of their section of the country. As advocates of agricultural advantages for the farmer they are no more liberals than the advocates of a high tariff for the eastern manufacturers. They are selfish and sectional partisans, and, according to our notions about representative government, rightly so.

Holmes' Liberalism Is Different

They do, of course, inherit the old, old ideas of the debtor west about taking government out of the hands of the propertied and employing and professional classes and turning it over to the man in the street and the farmer in the field. They are strong for the devices by which the latest generations of western "progressives" have sought to make government not "representative" but "democratic." The initiative, the referendum, the direct primary, the direct election of senators, for instance. They still hanker after the repeal of judicial decisions. If that be liberalism, then they are undoubted liberals.

In that sense Mr. Justice Holmes, as I understand it, is not a liberal at all. He wears his rue with a difference. He is a horse of another color. I doubt whether he would recognize the confused and naive thirst for power of the middle western farmer group as liberalism at all.

Yesterday the newspapers printed all the usual encomiums, tributes and elegies, which otherwise had been reserved for Mr. Holmes' greater resignation (may it be many years away!). As usual, none of them said anything specific. They were decorous, laudatory, perfectly true in a general sort of way, but they didn't mean a thing, because they might have been applied to almost any decently good judge after a long period of service.

Mr. Holmes is a constitutional liberal, who believes in the right of the people through their representative bodies to legislate with considerable freedom, and who would restrict our courts' right of review only to cases of obvious abuse. He is a liberal also in that he does not believe in the Constitution as a "frame of government," a fixed, unyielding, perfect instrument, dictated directly by Jehovah to the Fathers, embodying revealed and unchangeable truths. He believes in government as an evolving organism, adapting itself to meet changing conditions.

Always the Lawyer, the Judge

Particularly does he believe that government, in matters having to do with business, industrial regulation, employment, etc., must keep pace with changed conditions and public opinion. "The Constitution," he once said, "was not intended to enact Herbert Spencer's 'Social Statics'". In many cases where the strict constructionists tried to drag in the old amendment about "property without due process of law," Mr. Holmes was after them.

He is not by temperament a thorough-going liberal, as Mr. Mencken acutely pointed out about a year ago. He is a legal or judicial liberal. He led no crusade against diseased big business, as Brandeis did before elevated to the bench. He is not a liberal in the sense that he always upheld personal liberty against the regulating power of the state. He upheld government in the various decisions rising out of the 18th amendment. His notations on the subject of free press and free speech, even in war time, are those of the individualistic 18th century. And he stands with the Chief Justice for those aliens who do not believe that citizenship need necessarily entail the obligation to kill.

Sometimes he has disappointed his through-going admirers, who believe that liberalism is a dogma to which everything must be subordinated. Mr. Holmes does not think so. In some respects he is 18th century; in some respects he is 20th century; in some cases he goes far back to the formative years of the common law. Always he is the lawyer and the judge, trying to mold a clumsy and complex and technical instrument, full of abuses and errors, to the necessities of a new age. But he is never, I think, an opportunist like Mr. Borah, never a radical dogmatist, like Mr. Norris. He stands by the Law.

Fascinating Story of Underworld Jungles By Jack Lait

GREATER BOSTON NEWS — BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN — SECOND SECTION

BOSTON, THURSDAY, JANUARY 14, 1932

PRIVATE FUNDS TO AID CITIES

FAIR FLYER A BLIND FLYING STUDENT

Blind flying, experimented with by the Army and Navy air service, has entered commercial field. Crocker Snow, well known Boston aviator and in charge of Skyways, is instructing the art of blind flying, the first school of its kind in the country, outside of Army or Navy instruction. Miss Ethel Hare of Wellesley, one of Crocker Snow's pupils, is shown about to be enclosed completely in the cockpit by Snow. Blind flying is where aviator flies completely by instrument and senses, completely enclosed in the cockpit so that flier cannot look overside for bearings. (International Newsreel photo.)

PRIVATE FUNDS ADVANCED TO AID CITIES

Others, Not So Well Off, Face Suspension of Their Pay Days

Financial aid given two Massachusetts cities raised a feeble flicker of hope today in the hearts of the mayors of other municipalities which are in dire straits.

While Lawrence, Revere, Quincy and other cities have been unable to obtain loans, Holyoke announced the borrowing of $200,000 from two of the city's heaviest taxpayers, and $100,000 more will be obtained today from another big taxpayer.

Springfield has been given assurance by banking interests that at least $300,000 will be available when the need of a loan arrives.

Meanwhile, Lawrence and Quincy face the probability of having to follow the lead of Chelsea in calling off municipal paydays for a while.

FAIL TO GET LOANS.

Woburn city officials believe they can operate on present resources until $400,000 in 1930 and 1931 taxes are collected. Those who owe taxes are being called to account.

Mayor McGrath of Quincy stated that it would be necessary to lend city employes' salaries in negotiations to meet a $200,000 note are successful, this note being due today.

Lawrence city officials failed to obtain a loan in Boston and the city workers will be payless unless somebody thinks of something that hasn't been thought of yet. Chicopee, like Quincy, faces the necessity of using what funds it has to pay notes that are coming due. City employes there were not paid yesterday.

COPS AS COLLECTORS

Mayor Slowey of Lowell ordered all 1931 bills held up, saying the city must be financed before any of last year's bills will be paid, as they are holdovers from another administration.

The town of Webster, with $96,000 in back taxes owed, may resort to publication of funds. Mayor Lyons of Marlboro announced that policemen will do the work of the assessors, at a saving of $1150, and he hopes to run the budget $25,000 without residence taxes.

School teachers in the town of Berkeley, near Taunton, will not be paid until March, and some of the town officials will also have to go without their salaries for a while, due to tardy payment of taxes.

FIGHTS 2 WITH CAN OF BEANS

Nathan Cutler, 39, of 76 Sixty-six st., Malden, although unarmed, braved death and routed two armed bandits in the chain store of which he is the manager at 75 Holyoke st., that city, last night.

Cutler seized a can of beans and hurled it at the gunman who opened fire on him. As missed and Cutler reached to the floor for a hammer. As he did the second gunman struck him on the head with a gun.

Samuel Glusky, 19, of Harvard st., Malden, an order boy who was in the rear of the store, telephoned police headquarters while Cutler was battling the bandits and a police car driven by Sergt. Joseph B. Henry went racing toward the store. Patrolman William J. Butler was with him. They saw the car containing the two alleged bandits and gave chase. On Lynn st., Sergt. Henry crowded the fleeing car to the curb and two youths jumped out. One got away and the officers caught the second, who said he is Bernard Skillings, 16, of Medford st., Malden.

FIGHT TO KEEP TRAIN SERVICE

Because they will be deprived of their Sunday papers until 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon, residents of Provincetown protested to the State Department of Public Utilities against the proposal of the New Haven railroad to discontinue train service between Yarmouth and Provincetown on Sundays.

John R. Mantha of the Provincetown board of selectmen voiced a protest at a hearing yesterday.

Athur W. Blackman, counsel for the railroad, said that mail and newspapers will be transported from Yarmouth by truck, and that passengers would be handled by motor bus.

Provincetown residents say that the paper truck will not get to Provincetown until 4 o'clock and that it will be nearly Monday morning before they can read the Sunday papers.

Blackman said that it costs the New Haven $72 a trip from Yarmouth to Provincetown, while the revenue is only about $10 on an average winter Sunday.

POLICE RADIO INSTALLED

The installation of radio equipment, which is to pave the way for the complete motorization of the Newton police department, has been started at police headquarters.

A receiving set was installed yesterday in the main office at headquarters and similar sets are being placed in 10 police department automobiles. As soon as the cars are equipped and ready for use, all patrolmen now covering beats will be taken off the street and assigned to patrol duty in automobiles.

For the immediate future, the Newton police will avail themselves of the facilities of the State police broadcasting station at Framingham for the purpose of communicating with the radio-equipped cars. If it is deemed advisable later, an independent broadcasting system will be installed at police

Field and Forest Club Dance

The Field and Forest Club will hold a supper dance tomorrow at the Hotel Brunswick. Arthur H. Pohl heads the committee.

COURT ROOM 'BLINDED'

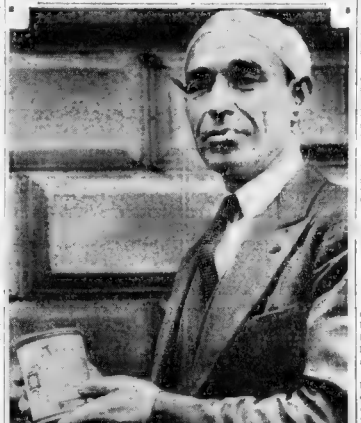

Judge Orders Ban Put on 'Peekers'

To prevent people in the corridor from peering into the fourth criminal session in Pemberton sq. court house, Judge Albert P. Hayden ordered the windows covered with large, green desk blotters and heavy brown paper.

Efforts to keep the paper on the outside of the windows proved fruitless. The sheets were removed during the night, but the blotters, on the inside, were not disturbed.

Court attaches said that people had been looking into the courtroom and distracting the attention of jurors.

USES HIS BEAN TO ROUT 2

Nathan Cutler, manager of a chain store at 75 Holyoke st., Malden, has found a new use for beans. He uses them as a weapon. When two bandits held up the store he fought them, suffering severe head injuries, but he put them to rout with his trusty can o' beans. (Staff photo.)

Belmonte Freed by Chief Burton and Daisy Is Given "Once Over"

Daisy stood defiant before the glaring lights.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Capt. "Fightin' Jim" Fitzpatrick gets his brother Ed ordered to police headquarters to help him expose the vice squad, which he claims framed Daisy Beaumont and had her sentenced to three years in a reformatory. The four Dopey boys are found murdered in a warehouse and Capt. Jim hunts out "Big Boy" Belmonte and takes him to headquarters. Chief of Police Burton, with a gay party of bridge players from his home, looks him over and lets him go.

NOW CONTINUE THE STORY

By JACK LAIT

FIGHTIN' JIM FITZPATRICK, who had battled his way upward to head the homicide squad by virtue of a hard-boiled and relentless attitude toward evildoers and criminals, walked out of the chief of detectives' office to accompaniment of flashing guns and the booming of flashlights. He snorted in disgust.

His brother, Ed, who had been lingering outside the door, hurried up to him.

"What happened?" Ed asked apprehensively, noting the evil look on Fitz's face.

"Happened!" growled Fitz. "Happened—what else could have happened. We had no more'n got that cockroach in here than a writ of habeas corpus train him down. The Chief wouldn't listen to reason. I wanted him to wave them aside—there's a few things I'd like to have put up to Belmonte. But our sniffle with his nearer-my-god-to-thee attitude toward the majesty of the law wouldn't hear to it. Belmonte laughed in his puss. And now the chief and the dolls and pansies he brought down with him are getting their pictures taken. . . America, I love you!"

The door of the Chief of Detectives' office opened again. Belmonte his swarthy and greasy countenance beaming came out flanked by his five bodyguards.

"So, Fitz," he snapped cheerily, "now it's the party you brought me in. Some classy mails in that outfit. I invited 'em all to come down and have dinner with me some night. I'll open——"

FITZ'S FACE WAS WHITE

Fitz wheeled, his face white with anger.

"You get off this time, Belmonte!" he exclaimed hoarsely, clenching his fists. "An' you're crowing over it. But so help me God, I'll get you and your dirty mob. I'll——"

"Let me take a punch at the skunk, Jim!" cried Ed, pushing past his brother. Belmonte stepped behind his henchmen, still grinning. Fitz caught his brother's arm.

"Cut it, kid—don't be a fool," he admonished. "His time'll come. He's only hanging himself."

"But I didn't hang the Dopey Boys, Cap'n," and Belmonte made a bow and maneuvered his way around Fitz, toward the stairs.

"Come on, Jim, I'll drive you home," said Mac, who had joined his chief.

"No, thanks—think I'll walk it off—goodnight," and he hurried away.

Meantime, Chief Burton was saying to Chief Craig:

"I think that fellow Fitzpatrick overdoes it. That was a stupid, stupendous blunder he made in arresting Belmonte. And I'm the one who will get the criticism. We must have no more of this."

"But he must have had something on Belmonte to take a chance like that," said Chief Craig softly.

"You must speak severely to him," insisted Chief Burton, giving his arm to the actress, as he prepared to leave.

Daisy Beaumont fretted and fumed in her cell. Three hours passed.

"They just won't let a girl go straight!" she exclaimed to the phlegmatic matron who pushed a large can of coffee and a hunk of bread. Daisy snorted at the food and drink.

"Well, what's the rap—what have I done?" cried Daisy, shaking her platinum-topped head angrily. "They come around and pick me up at home. I'm makin' an honest livin—workin' at a job and they won't leave me alone." She paused a moment and then said, "Let me see Captain Fitzpatrick—he's my friend."

"If he's such a friend," confided the matron, "why didn't you talk to his brother, Ed. He was the one who brought you in."

"Oh, so that was his brother—he looked more like a sheik than a cop," mused Daisy. "He was pretty nice about it, anyway—nice and polite. But what's the rap?"

"I don't know. You'll be in the lineup at 9 a.m. You'll find out then. It's almost time. They got four other blondes like you—I guess they want to detect if they're natural or phoneyed-up."

"Well, they haven't got a thing on me, not even perfume. They can't pinch a party because of their complexion."

"But they did. Anyway here they are now. Come on."

The matron dangled a bunch of keys which hung from her belt and the lock squeaked open. Daisy unconsciously patted her hair in place. Outside she was lined up with six other girls and marched down a long hallway.

On the line-up stage, beneath a strip of lights casting dazzling glares and backed before a large black board which was ruled off in feet and inches, the girls were aligned much like a chorus before a stage director. This was the shadowbox, and out beyond in the dim light Daisy could see the silhouetted faces of a score of men.

THE GIRLS STIFFENED

"Straighten up, girls!" shouted an imperious voice.

"Well, do you recognize her?" came the same voice.

"I can't say—but that looks like her—only she had on a different dress," came in husky tones. Daisy squinted at the speaker, attired in overalls, a cap in his hand.

"What did she say to you when she stopped your truck?"

"She said—she said, 'Which way's Randolph st.?'"

"Hey you! Come on say it — which way's Randolph st.?"

The girl murmured something and the command staccato and sharp, came again.

"Which—which way's Randolph st." the girl faltered.

"That's her — I recognized her voice!" exclaimed the man in overalls. The girl began to cry.

"Okay—take her out."

"No—no—Jim—" sobbed the girl.

"Take her out! Let the others go. All but Daisy Beaumont there—I want to talk to her."

"Now, Daisy, you were in Bedford, weren't you?" asked the officer, walking up to her.

"Yeah — what of it? I took a wrong rap — an' they let me go when they found I'd been framed — can't you leave a girl alone to earn an honest livin'——"

"Honest?" You work for Belmonte, don't you?"

"Certainly I do—and I work. Plenty of girls work for worse guys than him—and I need the job."

"Well, I'm going to let you go this time—but there's certain things we want to know. You'll be better outside than in. I want you to keep your eyes open and report——"

"Steal?" asked Daisy contemptuously.

"No, just keep yourself out of trouble."

"You—I understand."

"Well, we'll let you go—but remember, you've got a record—"

"All right, mister, when do I leave?"

"You're free to go now—take her out, Ed."

Ed Fitzpatrick motioned to her. She jumped lightly from the platform. Ed drew over by the arm and led her through the group of detectives. When [illegible] the square [illegible] and confronted [illegible]

"Well, you ain't such a bum like your brother—he's at least a square shooter, if he is a copper."

Capt. Jim gets busy after Belmonte's gang in tomorrow's installment. Don't fail to get the thrills.

IF YOU HAVE DIAMONDS, PREPARE TO WEAR THEM now, that is if you are a member of the exclusive Chilton Club. A brilliant setting awaits them. On the evening of Wednesday, Jan. 27, the social clock will be turned back 80 odd years, to 1850, when the ladies who can boast of CH. after their names will meet at the clubhouse on Commonwealth ave., with their escorts, to re-enact the most brilliant ball Boston has ever known, the occasion of the Prince of Wales' (the late King Edward) visit to the United States.

MRS. GEORGE R. FEARING, 3d

And all of those who have the cherished ball gown of their grandmother's to wear, or those who are fortunate enough to be able to borrow one of the original costumes, will take them out of their tissue wrappings tenderly and nip and tuck until they are arrayed as were the belles of 1850.

• • •

Others who have no trunks to ransack in the attic will hasten to the fashionable modiste and there have made something lovely and authentic. Once again the rooms will ring with the laughter of 19th century guests and ghosts, beruffled and be-bustled ladies, frocked and furbelowed gallants. There never were more picturesque grande toilettes than those of the 50's.

Pageant Will Be Gala Revival

IF THE PRINCE OF WALES WERE GOING TO APPEAR in person there could hardly be more excitement. Dear old Boston does love to revel in its past. The stately old Revere House, where the magnificent ball was held, is now no more and the guests of that time have passed on, but many episodes and incidents have been passed down to this generation and this pageant will be as truly a revival as only Boston could boast.

Amusing Incident

ONE DEAR LADY RELATED an amusing incident to us. Her mother was a girl of 20 when the dashing Prince Edward came to these shores and she attended the grand ball on the arm of her father, a tall, soldierly man. Passing down the long staircase the little maid punched her father's arm and whispered, "Father, who is that beautiful girl coming toward us?" Her father smiled and, keeping on toward the newcomer, presently they met. The girl burst out laughing. She had been looking at herself in a long mirror coming down the stairs.

THE 1916-17 SEWING CIRCLE met this week at the home of Rosamond Lamb (Mrs. Horatio A. Lamb) at 126 Beacon st. There was a time when belonging to the Sewing Circle was the diploma of your coming out season; now it is making the Junior League. But the girls still meet once a month for luncheon and gossip and then dash off again to meet at a different house next time. This year on account of the depression there will be only six luncheons, where there are usually twelve. And don't be misled by the name Sewing Circle. They never sew, they just weave yarns that brighten the fabric of their lives. To this happy group belong Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw Jr., Mrs. William F. Snow, Jr., Mrs. Neil W. Rice, Mrs. Allen Cunningham, Mrs. Charles K. Cobb and about twenty others.

LACE GOWNS POPULAR

Many Worn at Brilliant Paris Parties

By EVE MARVEL

Paris, Jan. 14 (US)—There have been many receptions in Paris in the last few weeks, but Mrs. Ada Sorg Walser's at the Hotel Astoria was certainly one of the most successful. It began with a tea dance in the afternoon, continued with a buffet supper, and lasted until late in the evening.

Among the guests were the Grand Duke and Duchess Boris of Russia, Mrs. H. L. Townsend and Miss Elizabeth Townsend, Mrs. Adolph Spreckles and her daughter, Miss Florence Walton, erstwhile dancing partner of Maurice. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lounsbery, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Thaw and Miss N. Radovan Delitch.

Miss Delitch wore a red satin gown that was particularly lovely with her white hair. Her Empress Eugenie coiffure was of matching red. Over the dress she wore a short jacket of summer ermine.

Mrs. Gilbert White wore a brown lace blouse over a skirt of darker brown peau d'ange. The hostess received in a gown of black crepe satin brocade on long and simple lines. Her beautiful diamond jewelry was her only ornament.

A striking international assemblage gathered at the reception given by Mrs. Lucile Meaghes, the Hungarian stage designer. Among the Americans present were Miss Ruth Green Harris, Mme. Roger Vitrac, the former Kathleen Cannell, and Mme. Helene Rubenstein wife of the American publisher, Edward Titus.

Mme. Rubenstein wore a natural color silk gown on oriental lines. Mme. Vitrac's flesh color silk gown had an 18th century salmon velvet jacket.

SYMPHONIC PAGEANT SCORES

Paintings Are Reproduced in Tableaux

THE SYMPHONIC PAGEANT—for the benefit of the Christopher Shop—and we had our own idea as to what it was going to be like—but we were more than merely pleasantly surprised.

Twelve beautiful "tableaux vivants" were show in order before our wondering eyes, at Symphony Hall, last night, and we discovered a group of some of "Boston's BEST" in each one included with the most perfect accompanying music. Mr Arthur Fiedler must have worked for weeks on the program, choosing the correct overture and accompaniment for each. A gilded square framed the pictures, the subjects exactly copied from some of the best known paintings in the world.

Portrayed Mozart

The curtains opened each time after a ten-minute interval to allow the entire change of scene, the overture bringing the audience to the period in which the picture's subject takes place. We saw Mozart, the composer, as a boy, in the Court of Maria Theresa, an exquisitely costumed group listening, enchanted with his promise. Mrs. Morgan Butler sang a lovely solo, and Master Philip Bliss portrayed Mozart. The powdered wigs, enormous skirts, the lace ruffles and satin knee-breeches all formed a long-remembered tableau of the famous painting Edward Euder.

"The Spring Dance," in which Miss Eugenia Frothingham, Charlotte Lyman, Mary Potter, Margaret Ford Carol Smith and Mrs. F. L. Higginson, Jr., danced, and then again formed the picture by Stutt, was sponsored by Mrs. Guy Currier. Orpheus and Eurydice, portrayed against a lovely setting by Miss Lydia Fuller and Mr. George Grant, were Mrs. Franklin Hobbs idea.

Receives Ovation

"The Fete by Watteau sponsored by Mrs. Horace Morison, Mrs. Wilbur S. Grant (who, by the way, handled the publicity) and Mrs. George S. Parker showed the lovely old French scene, so that, as in all of them, we felt as though the figures could not possibly be real—but they came to life gracefully. Mrs. Morison a talented daughter, Miss Nancy, danced a solo, and four couples clipped and turned in a beautiful minuet.

And then came one quite different—Spanish castanets clashing so that unconsciously one's feet tapped to the rhythm, with a flashing central figure swaying in a tango. This was Zuloaga's famous painting "The Gypsy Dance" which Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller sponsored and in which Miss Lydia Fuller danced, receiving a tremendous ovation afterward. "The Brook's Song" by Adolphe Hornburg was sung by and pictured by the Belmont Damatic Club, and sponsored by Mr. and Mrs Stuart C. Rand and Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Chase. The men's chorus was superb.

Colonial Classics

We thought the climax came when more Spanish music was heard from the orchestra pit and the curtains swung apart to show John Singer Sargent's "El Jaleo," which hangs at the end of the court in Mrs Jack Gardner's palace. Miss Charlotte White had caught the pose, more perfectly than could be imagined, and in the background were those inimitable figures with guitars and upraised hands, applauding. They quickened into action when the pose was recognized, and Miss Elizabeth Wells, Miss Elizabeth Hovey and Miss Helen White swayed and clapped in perfect time with the dance. The poses were perfect in their attitudes and when the pose was taken again the applause was more than deserved and most gratifying. Mrs. Channing McC. Wells and Mrs Clagett Wilson, the latter being the one who staged the whole thing, sponsored this.

Two tableaux of Colonial days followed in quick succession—an Indian tableau designed by Mr. Theodore B. Pitman and posed by his son, Theodore B. Pitman, Jr., with two others, and the painting of the "Pilgrims Going to Church" by George H. Boughton, sponsored by Mrs. Ralph Hornblower, Mrs. Walter Borden and Miss Rose Briggs, with the Plymouth Antiquarian Society posing.

Mr. Archibald M. Willett's stirring picture called the "Spirit of '76" showing the figures of the drummers and fifer the American flag waving proudly over their heads, was too wonderful, and the music brought many tears. It was posed for by Mrs. George S. Parker.

"Christmas Eve at Mt. Vernon" by J. L. G. Ferris portrayed the minuet and powdered wigs again, and was posed by the Copley Society of Boston, sponsored by Mrs. Frederick H. Briggs. "Putting the Stars on the First Flag," another of Mr. Ferris' masterpieces, pictured "Betsy Ross, posed by the Brookline Amateurs. This was sponsored by Mrs. Briggs also.

A Perfect Climax

And the perfect climax, that gesture that thrills the whole country—"Washington Swearing Allegiance to the Flag" by Percy Morgan. The sponsors for this last picture were Mrs. Willis Doane and Capt. Thomas Frothingham and was posed, in the flashing uniform of the time, by the members of "The Continental Guard of the Sons of the American Revolution," commanded by John F Robinson. The allegiance was repeated, the salute given, and the orchestra broke into "The Star Spangled Banner." The entire audience rising to its feet and singing with it.

Such a climax! Our only regret is that it cannot be arranged for a repetition, as all that work and perfected artistry is over in one evening. One evening—but more thoroughly enjoyed than any for a long time. Do let's have another next year, Mrs. Pitman, as that lady was the power behind it all!

Mr. and Mrs. Granville Edward Foss of 220 Newbury st. and North Andover announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Mary, to Mr Edmund H Hamann of New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Hamann of Mt. Vernon, N. Y. A summer wedding is planned.

Miss Foss is a graduate of the May school and of Smith College, class of 1925, and also of the School of Fine Arts. She is now director of the Hartford art school in Connecticut.

Mr. Hamann prepared for college at the Taft school and was graduated from Yale in 1931, afterward receiving his doctor's degree in chemistry at Columbia University. He is now in business in New York.

Mrs. Gulesian Will Conduct Orchestra

Grace Warner Gulesian (Mrs. M. H. Gulesian), the composer who wrote the lyrics for the Mrs. Larz Anderson sea operetta, "Marina," will take over the baton of Will Dodge, orchestra leader, at tomorrow night's performance at the Colonial.

All through the rehearsal period of "Marina" here, Mrs. Gulesian stood by on the stage rearranging her musical score better to bring out the finer qualities of the vocal artists appearing in "Marina," and during all this difficult working period, she also composed at least four of the big numbers being sung in "Marina."

BOOKS—and a Number of Things

By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

WEEKLY GAZETTE

Monday, January 4th: The bad weather continued, in keeping with the depressing times; and I prayed that the sun would come out, but all my hopes were in vain.

Passing a book-stall in my street I noted a set of Kipling, in splendid condition—the edition issued years ago by the Scribners; and when I asked the price of it I was amazed and bought it instantly, never being able to resist a bargain. So in the evening, back to one of my first literary loves, and had a royal time of it.

• • •

Tuesday, January 5th: Another miserable day, but a good one in which to accomplish much work and in the evening to dine with Peter and Marion Fletcher Gordon Grant, the artist, and his wife there, but as he could not play contract, he curled up like a bookworm in a corner whilst we indulged in several rubbers; and if there are golf widows, there are now bridge widowers here and there.

• • •

Wednesday, January 6th. Another day of incessant rain, which made it impossible to get in my usual long walk; but I worked with unusual alacrity. Then to a luncheon given by Theodosia Garrison and her husband, Fred Faulks, and to see Ed Wynn in "The Laugh Parade" so funny that I would have rolled on the floor had I been in an aisle seat; for there is no one more droll than this comedian. Very late to my office; then home in time to dress for a dinner at Mrs. Wilson Preston's, and Thelma Grosvenor there, telling me of an exhibition of her paintings at the Starner Gallery, and I promised to go and see it. Played a few rubbers of bridge with Mrs. Less of Philadelphia; and then home in the wind and rain.

• • •

Thursday, January 7th: To lunch with a friend who induced me to take out an insurance policy, and I feel I shall never regret this. Then back to work, and in the evening to dine with Amory Hare Hutchinson, of Media, where I found Nigel Bruce and Leslie Banks, the actors in "Springtime for Henry" and the beautiful Frances Dee, of motion picture fame. And then Mrs. Hutchinson and I to a theatre to see "Cojunala-Law," and I liked all of it except the very last short scene, which seemed to me out of key with the rest of the play.

• • •

Friday, January 8th: Gertrude Shonk, Phoebe Aspinwall and Carlyle Bethel came to dine and play bridge and never, during an entire evening have I held such poor cards.

Saturday, January 9th: Some more books came home from the binder, exquisitely done, and showed them to J. Denison when he dropped in for lunch. In the evening to a large dinner for the men of the Automobile Show, given at the Ritz-Carlton, and I found many old friends there. The speeches were brief, but the wittiest I have ever heard, particularly by James Montgomery Flagg, R. I. Goldberg, Rupert Hughes and Irvin Cobb. Home at a decent hour, with Gene Tunney and Grantland Rice, skidding through streets that were slippery because of the wet snow and sleet.

Sunday, January 10th: The first fine day that we have had this year; but I was grieved to read of the death of my old friend, Frederick O'Brien, in California. I recalled how he and I, with a party of friends, had once traveled through the Far West, and what brilliant speeches he made along the way, and what fun we had had at the Pendleton Rodeo. He was a fine writer, and as handsome a gentleman as one would ever meet; and now, as a traveler, he has gone on his final journey.

To a luncheon at Mrs. Finley Thomas', where I found the Langdon Mitchells, among others; and there was much gay discussion of the Shaw-Terry letters and of Frank Harris book on Shaw. Then for a long walk in the winter sunshine, and to call upon Geoffrey and June Kerr, who told me they would soon be rehearsing in a new play.

In the evening to Gertrude Shonk's for a rubber of bridge with John and "Lal" Winchester.

HUSBAND IS "EFFICIENCY EXPERT" IN THE HOME

—By HELEN ROWLAND—

AT TWENTY, a woman is what God made her; at forty, she is what self-determination and the beauticians have made her.

• • •

There is nothing like looking around at a few other women's husbands, to make you take a bright new view of your own special "Blessing" or "Dispensation."

• • •

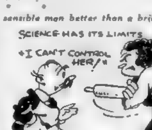

Every husband is a little "efficiency expert" in the home. He can tell a woman all about the cause of the economic depression and how France could pay her war debt, while he is wondering where the money for the next installment on the radio is coming from.

• • •

In these days, the only way to extract a really beautiful and effective proposal of marriage from a man, is to write it out and make him say it over after you

• • •

The average woman likes a sensible man better than a brilliant man, a modest man better than a scintillating one, and a clean-cut, well set-up man better than a glamorous Adonis. The kind of man who loves woman—not "[illegible]n."

• • •

In these days, if you want to find a man who knows how to make love you will have to look for one over thirty. Most of the younger ones seem to have picked up their knowledge of the art at a cafeteria

The Beauty Box

SMARTING feet are due sometimes to stockings from which soapsuds has not been properly rinsed. After washing hosiery, rinse in clear water to which borax has been added. Stockings too short cause foot ills, pressing toes into a huddle, forcing the flesh to harden around the nails.

When children won't eat—

and won't gain weight—

Try This!

The youngster who has no appetite, probably has stasis. A little fig syrup will soon correct this condition—then watch the child eat—and gain!

Mothers should never coax a child to eat. Nature knows best. Remove the cause of a youngster's poor appetite—get rid of stasis. Children who don't eat are sluggish. Read what the "California treatment" is doing for sluggish, listless children in every part of the country!

A Pound a Week

Your child will eat well from the day and hour you conquer sluggishness. But that girl or boy with furry tongue and a bad breath should not be dosed with salts!

Begin tonight, with enough pure fig syrup to cleanse the colon thoroughly. Less tomorrow, then every other day, or twice a week, until the appetite, digestion, weight, complexion, tell you the stasis is gone. When a cold or other ailment has again clogged the system, fig syrup will soon set things to right.

When appetite fails, tongue is coated white, eyes are a bilious yellow, California fig syrup will gently stimulate the colon muscles—and the child you used to coax to eat will fairly devour his food.

Just One If—The claims made for California Fig Syrup are true and it will do the same for you—IF you get genuine CALIFORNIA fig syrup. Don't accept any of the substitutes.

EMBERS OF LOVE ❖ By Hazel Livingston

IT WAS a hot July on the water when Lily Lou made her crossing from Europe, but both she and the baby stood it well.

She was surprised and delighted to find Tony Schiarilla aboard. When he learned she had a child he offered to help her in any way, even to marriage

In New York Lily Lou went to live at Maxine's flat and to work with Gwin. The latter became too affectionate after a while and Lily Lou was glad to say good-by and accept an offer in an opera company touring the country.

Then she was shocked to hear of her mother's death, and went to Woodlake for the funeral. There her sister May told her of Ken's engagement break with Peggy and his going to South America on business

Mme Nahlman arrived from Europe and took her on a tour for two years in small parts. After a time in a night club she was given a place in "The Butterfly" on Broadway, where she made a big hit and was invited as guest artist to the San Francisco Opera Company, where Tony played in the orchestra. There in "Traviata" she was a grand success. She received a big surprise one day at the theater

George Farmers, the publicity manager tapped at her door

"There's an old fellow who's determined to get in to see you, Madame Lansing. Says his name is Lansing, and he's a distant relation. Do you want to see him?"

HER HEART POUNDED

Lily Lou's heart bounded Stopped beating for a second. Dad! Her own fahter—it must be!

It was. He followed close at the publicity manager's heels, a little shy, but not too much impressed with all the show, the unfamiliar surroundings the little group of admirers who waited outside.

"Dad!" she hugged him, laughing and crying, a little hysterical at the thought of having him here, in the city, at her performance—

She scanned his weatherbeaten face anxiously. He hadn't changed much. He seemed a little more like Uncle Eph

"Oh, Dad—you don't know how I've wanted to see you!"

She hid her face on his shoulder, still laughing and crying, not knowing just what to say.

"I was proud of you, Dolly," he told her, holding her off at arm's length to look at her. "You sang all your notes true, and you looked very handsome. I bought me a good $2 seat, and it was worth it—"

"Dad, you could have had the stage box—the front row—anything!"

"Now, don't you go throwing your money away You save your money, Lily Lou! I didn't mind the $2. Didn't I say it was worth it!"

She looked at him. His old, shiny suit, his carefully combed hair, the collar that was too large, and frayed along the edges Her heart was bursting.

"Yes, I come down from the lake last night," he said. "I don't always read the papers every day. I'm up at your Uncle Eph's place most of the time now, and sometimes I kind of let the papers pile up and read them all at the end of the week. So when I saw you were here—"

"I tried so hard to find you, Dad. Bess—"

"Yes, I know. Bessie, she doesn't like me herding sheep up there. Verner's kind of putting on the dog lately, and I guess she wants I should dress up more. It's kind of a relief for me not to dress up, Dolly. I guess I'm kind of a careless old man now. But I slicked up for today—"

HAD FORGOTTEN ROBIN

"You could have come in your dungarees!"

"Yes, you and me . . . sort of alike, Dolly. That your boy?"

She had forgotten Robin, playing quietly in a corner.

For one hideous moment she hesitated The lie that had been so easy before was impossible now. And yet . . .

"Come see your grandad, son," he said, holding a horny hand out to the child.

Robin moved toward him slowly, serious dark eyes, studying the grand-dad who didn't look like anyone he had even seen before

"He's got a good head," her father said, taking the little boy on his knee. "Gets that from your mother's side. I wouldn't say he had any of the Sargent in him, unless it's kind of around the mouth and chin."

"Does he—look so much like me?" she faltered "Why nobody else—nobody ever . . . Robin, darling, go out in the hall to Marie. She's waiting just outside the door. And come back in 15 minutes to us And then granddad and you and I will go home!"

"Good-bye, granddad—"

"Goodbye, sir!"

"I've always said he was adopted, you know," she continued, still a little unsteadily. "It seemed the best way."

"Yes, I know. I always figured you could do it your own way, Dolly. The rest of them seemed to think it was natural, your taking a boy to adopt Bessie didn't act like it was anything out of the way. But I always thought . . . and of course, now's I've seen him. Well, he's a nice boy. You'll raise him up all right! Oh . . . this is going to work out kind of bad now.

Whooping Cough Dangerous in Great Many Cases

—By DR. R. S. COPELAND—

THERE IS one disease that mothers too frequently diagnose for themselves. This is whooping cough. Often, too, the mother treats her child without medical advice. Both these things are wrong, because the disease may prove to be far more serious than was expected

The early signs of this disease are similar to those of a cold in the head. These first symptoms are followed by a persistent cough. There may such spasms of coughing as to cause vomiting The "whoop" does not develop until a week or more after the onset of the disease

Children with whooping cough should not be permitted to play with other children. They should not go to school, church or the movies where other children are present. Whooping cough is contagious. It is spread by direct contact with the discharge from the mouth or nose.

It is not necessary for the child to remain in bed, unless he has fever. Fresh air and sunlight I regard as important agents in combating this disease and most other ailments.

I stress these warnings, because many others regard whooping cough as a disease that every child must have. Since this is not the case, every effort should be made to guard against the disease.

Recently there has been developed a vaccine for the prevention of this disease. It is regarded as having considerable value, particularly in very young infants that have been exposed to whooping cough.

Recipes of Hotels in Florida

DIET-WISE wives and mothers rejoice at winter appetites sharpened by the crisp, cold days and get a lot of pleasure in supplying the substantial fare to satisfy them. But they are careful to see that the hearty food is balanced by a sufficient daily supply of luscious, juicy fruits, especially the citrus fruit

It's wise to plan winter menus so that either a salad, a dessert or a fruit appetizer is served at least once a day. In this class of desserts comes this Miami Delight, a favorite in big Florida hotels. It's an ideal dessert to serve after a hearty roast.

Girl's Love May Be Too Obvious

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Last June I met a young man, and in the following months neither of us went with anyone else. During this time we learned to care deeply for each other. Not long ago we had an argument over some trivial thing. We made up but things were not the same. Since our quarrel, he does not come to see me as often as he used to. My girl friend says that I show my feelings too plainly. If he cared, do you think he would change just because he knows I care so much?

UNHAPPY.

Dear Unhappy: Your girl friend may be right. When a girl shows her feelings too plainly, boys often grow indifferent. The case of the too certain lover has been summed up by a keen student of human nature in: "You no longer chase the street car, once you've caught it."

Daily True Story

Marked Man

"I'D LIKE to see some unset diamonds—some good ones!" Boney Martini spoke with an air of authority as he stalked into Solly Epstein's jewelry store and unsuspecting Solly brought out a tray of his best diamonds.

Boney struck with the unexpectedness of a rattlesnake, and Solly went down without a sound. Boney hadn't meant to strike so hard. He scooped the loose diamonds into his coat pocket and hurried out of the store.

Coming down the street towards him was a big, athletic-looking man. "A plainclothes cop!" Boney muttered and, turning his back, hurried towards crowded Broadway.

Some distance along Broadway he glanced back. The big man was still following. Boney dodged experimentally a couple of times, but the other kept on his trail. Then, passing the Interurban station he darted inside. From behind a pillar far inside, he watched the entrance. Why should a cop be trailing him? Maybe to ask him about the Kite Store stickup. They hadn't pinned that on anyone yet, so—

The big cop appeared and Boney darted to the ticket window. A glance at the big board under the clock told him the Millarville train was just leaving. "Millarville, one way!" he snapped, and getting his ticket, darted to the gate and mingled with the crowd hurrying into the subterranean depths. One glance back as he did so showed him the cop at the ticket window, and Boney dived deep into the crowd.

Too late to turn back. His pursuers were behind; the station cop in front. Boney mingled with the sparse crowd, keeping a small knot of people between himself and the policeman, and his back to the tunnel behind him.

CROWD LOOKED AT HIM

Presently he noticed that several people in the crowd seemed to be looking at him in a peculiar way. Was he already surrounded? He moved about a little, and the curious glances followed him. Well, at the first false move he must shoot his way out. The first shot in the air, and then, if they tried to stop him

"Hey, mister!"

Boney tensed, ready to whirl. Then from a different point behind him he caught the words: "Looks like the killer to me!"

"The killer?" Boney spun around, whipping out his gun. A deafening report filled the tunnel and his first shot chipped the tiled roof. Instantly the crowd was in a panic and in the confusion Boney got safe around the corner. Wildly he raced along. He turned, then turned again. Ah! The Millarville gate again, and open just enough to let him through. Could he make it. The crowd was after him now. Their shouts echoed loudly behind him. Yes he would make it! With a final spurt he leaped through the narrow opening.

Too late he saw the foot that shot out in his path. He crashed with terrific force as he tripped over it. Then he lost consciousness

"What's all this about anyway?" The policeman who had tripped Boney peered up at his fellow from the other gate. "I saw this guy coming running like blazes and waving a gun, so I tripped him. What's he done?"

"Suddenly went crazy in No. 8 tunnel and started shooting off his gun. After the first shot he beat it, luckily for the crowd." The policeman turned to those about him. "Anybody know what started him off?"

"Maybe I did!" said a mild-looking old gentleman. "But I only said to him: 'Hey, mister!' and he whirled around and took a pot at me only it went high."

"I think he took that shot at us, if you ask me," said one of a pair of keen-eyed young fellows. "His gun was p[illegible] I had just said 'Looks like the killer to me,' and—"

"Killer? What killer?" snapped the policeman

"Eh? Oh, nobody, so far as I know. We were talking about the chalk marks on the back of his coat. He'd been leaning up against one of the boards with the special train times on, and . . ."

"That's just what I was going to tell him!" said the old man

WORDS ON HIS COAT

"And Bill and me were trying to figure out what the words on the back of his coat were," the young man continued. "What with them being reversed and the wrinkles twisting the letters, it wasn't so easy, but finally I figured it was 'The Killer.'"

A porter who had stepped up laughed. "You're wrong," he said. "It's The Miller. He had in that corner over there by the lockers, dodging a guy. Flattened himself [illegible] that notice board. I hollered to him to [illegible] the marks off his back, but he didn't stop. See, where it says that the Millervale special [illegible]"

The policeman who had been going through Boney's pockets for papers that would identify him, suddenly gasped [illegible] sparkled in the palm of his hand. As he did so, Boney stirred. As his eyes opened a look of surprise came into them.

"So you got me, eh?" he muttered dazedly.

"Yeh! We got you! And the diamonds, too!" the policeman said.

"The diamonds?" Boney shook his head as though to clear it. "Oh, yes! Solly's diamonds! I didn't mean to kill him!"

"Ho! So you are a killer!" There was a sudden click of handcuffs about Boney's wrists as he sat up and glared wildly about him.

"Didn't you know?" Boney snapped.

The policeman laughed. "Sure!" he said. "It was written all over you. You were a marked man!"

Pari-Mutuel System. Totalizer Is Needed. Casey's Appointment. ↕ Carroll's Cold Peds. Sonnenberg, Tonight. A Cincinnati Query.

Giving News So He Who Runs May Read

At 11 by the old town clock this morning, the new racing bill, sponsored by Bayard Tuckerman, Fred Fields, John R. Macomber, C. F. Adams and other well-known Massachusetts sportsmen, was presented the Clerk of the House . . . It is a good bill . . . Provides for the pari-mutuel system of betting, the best system . . . But, Mister Tuckerman and fellow sponsors, please do not leave out the Australian totalizer . . . The pari-mutuel isn't worth a plugged nickel without the totalizer . . . Mutuel betting, under the ticket system alone, leaves the players at mercy of the track officials . . . Without totalizer those who pay to make the bangtails run have no way of checking up on methods the proving of winners are arrived at . . . With the Australian totalizer every bet is recorded and registered instantly on the huge board . . . There is no chance of phenigling . . . After the last bet is made stewards press a button and machine is locked . . . At all times wager layers know the price on each horse . . . While you're doing things, might as well do things right . . . Leave the Australian totalizer out of pari-mutuel betting and the system is half wrong . . . A word to the wise is sufficient.

Don't know whether to congratulate or sympathize with Eddie Casey of Boston Evening American's sport staff . . . He'll find the job as boxing boss has more headaches than the coaching berth at dear old Harvard . . . An ideal political appointment . . . Cast oil on troubled political waters stirred into a turmoil by rival candidates . . . A shrewd, strategetic move by Governor Ely . . . Little doubt about appointment receiving approval of Governor's Council . . . Eddie comes in with an open mind, no strings attached and no experience . . . But he's an intelligent, level-headed fellow, who will rise to the occasion . . . Boxing needs a strong hand at the helm . . . Eddie has it . . . Eddie never needed smelling salts on the gridiron . . . He'll need 'em in boxing . . . Phooey! . . . To Massachusetts, congratulations on the Governor's appointment; to Casey, our sympathy—and support.

Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg, whose Flying Tackle was to wrestling what Jack Dempsey's left hook was to boxing, returns to the Boston mat at the Arena tonight . . . Any time Gus Sonnenberg mounts the ring platform we want a front seat . . . You're sure of action . . . Sonny draws Bill Bartusch, ex-Chicago collegian, as an opponent . . . They'll scatter action, pure and unadulterated, all over the place . . . Ma, can't I forget my rheumatism and go? . . . No, I will not strain my larynx or fracture my thorax . . . And honest, Ma, Sonny and Bill would make a cripple dance a jig—Can go, eh? . . . Whoopee! . . . See you at matside.

Little birdies say that the Dorval-Schaaf match was not called off because Jack had a cold but because Dan Carroll had cold feet . . . They chirp Dan guaranteed Schaaf $10,000 out of 52½ per cent of the gate and at the last minute started to worry that the 52½ per cent wouldn't be enough . . . Dan worried Dorval into the cold . . . And now Ernie is matched with Paolino in Gotham . . . If King Levinsky beats Paolino in Chicago tomorrow night, Sister Lena's meal ticket will draw the Schaaf assignment . . . Charlie Retzlaff, one of the Three Threats, has been removed . . . Two remain to carry the banners of Flaming Youth—Schaaf and Steve Hamas . . . The slugging young Penn State collegian, 23 knockouts and all, gets acid test in N. Y. tomorrow . . . Cagey old ring general, Tommy Loughran, past peak and heading down trail to Barren Lands, in opposite corner to inexperienced young slugger . . . A test in ring psychology . . . Only time we ever met Hamas he talked and talked about Loughran . . . Tommy was his hero . . . If Steve still thinks Loughran is as great as ever the youngster will be beaten . . . If he's lost his hero worship of Tommy, Steve may knock the veteran for a goal . . . Most experts think Tommy knows too much for the kid slugger . . . We'll know tomorrow night.

From Cincinnati—Zinzinnati of all places!—H. O. R. writes asking if we didn't confuse the S. S. Finland with the S. S. Barbarossa as the ship which transported the 1912 American Olympians to Stockholm . . . No, Herman, the Finland took the boys to Stockholm in 1912 and the Barbarossa to Athens in 1906 . . . Tidal wave struck Barbarossa in mid-ocean . . . Harry Hillman, now Dartmouth trainer, got a badly wrenched knee and cost him championship . . . L'il Harvey Cohn, now Dartmouth C. C. coach, would have been drowned only for Big Jim Mitchell, the weight thrower seizing Harvey's ankle as the wave was sweeping him under the rail . . . The huge wave washed big Martin Sheridan along one deck and bumped him down stairs to another . . . Martin landed with his favorite pipe still tightly clenched in his teeth . . . Speaking of Sheridan—green be the turf above him . . . how the Greeks idolized the man who tossed the discus clear over the stadium walls into the waters of the Illissus . . . Martin couldn't show himself on the streets of Athens without a crowd gathering and roaring, "Sher-ee-dong! Sher-ee-dong! Sher-ee-dong!" . . . Greek hero worshippers followed Sheridan just as American fight fans did Sullivan and Dempsey.

Return of Grand Circuit racing to New England will be just as big a boon to the trotters and pacers as the new racing bill will be to the bangtails . . . By the way, things are moving here, New England is becoming the Hub of the Sports Wheel . . . A world's heavyweight championship bout is all that is needed . . . The Bay State never had a better chance of landing it . . . Give Dick Dunn, a little more leeway, Messrs. Directors, and a little time, and he'll put Boston and the Bay State on the sport's map in earnest.

British Walker Cup Team to Be Invited Here

New York, Jan. 14 (AP)—To clear up any misunderstanding in London as to the willingness of the United States to hold the Walker Cup golf matches this year and to expedite plans for the international competition, H. H. Ramsay, president of the United States Golf Association, today said he will communicate at once with the Royal and Ancient Club of St. Andrews.

In doing this, Ramsay said he is breaking with precedent as it has been the procedure previously for the visiting team to make the first overtures.

"I have no doubt the matches will be held this year," Ramsay said today. "We have had no communications with the Royal and Ancient nor stated any opinion as to the advisability of holding the matches. They have been held every other year over a long period and I see no reason for us to drop them.

"To clear up the misunderstanding, however, I will write Mr. Cullen (Henry Cullen, secretary of the Royal and Ancient)."

SCHMELING AND WALKER BOUT OFF

New York, Jan. 14 (INS)—Max Schmeling, temporarily thrown out of employment by abandonment of his scheduled heavyweight title bout with Mickey Walker next month, looked forward today to a match with Jack Dempsey next summer.

Joe Jacobs, manager of the champion, announced he would await the arrival of Leonard Sachs, Dempsey's business manager, to discuss a Schmeling-Dempsey bout.

The Walker-Schmeling match, scheduled for Miami on February was slated to be formally signed late yesterday after weeks of negotiations but was called off by Jacobs at the 11th hour when he came to the belated realization that the affair would be a financial flop.

Prof. McCarney, who can spot a "Yegg" plug in a swamp, reported that dollars in Miami were scarcer than Republicans in Mississippi. Instead of collecting guarantees for Schmeling's training camp, the professor was "touched" for his own ready cash.

Dempsey Must Prove He Still Can Fight

Schmeling is under suspension in New York and cannot fight Dempsey here. And Madison Square Garden will not promote the match through one of its subsidiaries unless Dempsey will first take on some trial horse like Tom Heeney or Johnny Risko in a test bout.

Many boxing men agree with the prediction of Jimmy Johnston, manager of the Garden, that the fight game will be ruined all over the country if Dempsey turns out to be a flop.

In the background there is Jack Sharkey. The Boston tar has been trying vainly to get his promised return bout with Schmeling ever since he lost to Max on a foul in June, 1930. If Dempsey is not signed to meet Schmeling, Sharkey will be the only available opponent for the German.

Jack Kearns Is Saddest Man in New York

New York, Jan. 14 (INS)—Jack Kearns, manager of Mickey Walker, was the saddest person in town today.

Kearns had purchased three kegs of beer and a huge quantity of cakes and sandwiches to be used in celebrating the signing of Walker's bout with Max Schmeling for the heavyweight championship. When the bout was called off at the last minute, Kearns drowned his sorrows in the liquid refreshment and donated the "eats" to the nearest breadline.

Bostwick to Ride in 1933 Grand National

New York, Jan. 14 (INS)—G. H. (Pete) Bostwick, 22-year-old millionaire steeplechase jockey and polo player, said today he plans to ride his horse Road Agent in the 1933 Grand National, England's premier jumping race.

Bostwick has just returned from England, where he placed third or better 15 times in 28 starts. He will not compete in the Grand National this year because he was unable to obtain a good mount.

Steve Hamas Secretly Married on Nov. 7

New York, Jan. 14 (INS)—Steve Hamas, the former Penn State star who boxes Tommy Loughran here tomorrow night, was revealed today as a blushing bridegroom. Hamas, it was learned, was married here on Nov. 7 to Miss Catherine Work, a New York girl who has attained some fame as a golfer.

YOUTH HAMMERS ON FISTIC DOOR

ALEXANDER MAY JOIN CUBS

Avalon, Catalina Island, Cal., Jan. 14 (INS)—Grover Cleveland Alexander, bad boy of baseball, today was definitely on the "comeback trail," probably as a pitcher for the Chicago Cubs.

William Wrigley, Jr., has given him another chance in the game in which Alexander won world-wide fame.

Since Thanksgiving Day "Big Pete" has been conditioning on Catalina Island trails hitherto used only by mountain goats and today his legs were in shape and his pitching arm and wind "in first-class condition."

Alexander may start the 1932 season as a pitcher either for the Cubs or the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast League, and again he may be a coach for young Cubs.

Amateur Wrestlers to Have Tourney

Preliminary plans for the open amateur wrestling meet, under the auspices of the Boston Young Men's Hebrew Association, at their headquarters in Seaver st., Roxbury, on Jan. 27, have been started with the issuance of entry blanks, which must be returned to Sam O. Smith, in charge of the meet, not later than Jan. 25.

All contestants must be registered with the A. A. U., and those not enrolled can do so with J. Frank Facey, 36 Prospect st., Cambridge.

The race was run over a two-mile course and the stakes were £150.

Mosey King Rounds Out 25 Years as Coach

New Haven, Ct., Jan. 14 (INS)—Mosey King was honored at a banquet here last night, marking the beginning of his 25th year as Yale's boxing coach.

Mr. Boston

—By JACK CONWAY—

The appointment of Eddie Casey as a boxing commissioner is a good one. Casey will bring to his new post a wide experience in athletics, intelligence, fairness and a desire to make boxing a better sport than it is today.

It will be argued by some that Casey lacks experience in boxing. He is known as a football man. This argument will not carry much weight. Casey has attended most of the major boxing contests held in this city for many years. He has also been interested in amateur boxing. He is a splendid executive and has excellent judgment. These qualifications will enable him to fill a most difficult post with credit to himself and with benefit to the boxing game and the public.

Mr. Boston

Eugene Buckley, who will be replaced by Casey, has served on the Commission since 1921. He has carried most of the load at the office of the Boxing Commission. He took charge of the sport when it was in need of a strong governing hand. Through the efforts of Buckley, boxing is on a firm basis in Massachusetts.

Rhode Island, New York and Illinois are the only states which come up to the high standing set by boxing here.

Buckley was frequently attacked, but even his accusers were obliged to admit he was honest and fearless. The only real complaint they could make against him was that they did not accept all of his ideas.

Buckley is in the autumn of his life and I know he will be happier away from the many duties that go with being a boxing commissioner.

Eddie Mack announces he has signed Billy Hood of England to meet Leslie Baker of Watertown in a 10-round bout at an Argonne A. A. show at the Arena on January 20.

Hood has lost two decisions in bouts here, but is still a big favorite. He lost a questionable verdict to Leo Larrivee, while he got the worst of a weird finding in his recent contest with Mickey Bishop. Hood won eight out of 10 rounds in his tussle with Bishop, but the latter ended up with the verdict.

Ray Fabiani has adjusted his contract dispute with the Boston Garden and will stage his next wrestling show at the North Station sport palace on January 22. He has signed the veteran Strangler Lewis to meet the best available opponent.

There will be eight classes in the State boxing championships which will be held at the Arena on January 26 under the direction of the New England A. A. U. There will be contests at 112, 118, 126, 135, 147, 160 and 175 pounds and in the heavyweight division.

Charley Johnston is keeping Paulino active in the ring. He has the Basque battling King Levinsky in Chicago on Friday night, while on January 22 he will have him pitted against Ernie Schaaf in the New York Garden.

The proposed Schmeling-Walker bout at Miami, Fla., on February 25 blew up when it threatened to become the flop of several centuries. There apparently is something to Abraham Lincoln's adage to the effect you cannot fool all of the people all of the time.

ROSS WANTS TO SPEED UP GAME

Manager Art Ross of the Boston Bruins Hockey Club, will propose three major changes in the hockey rules at the next meeting of the board of governors which will be held February 2.

Both Ross and Patrick, always looking toward the spectators' enjoyment of the game and attempting to relieve the burden on the referees are working towards a point where whistle blowing will be reduced to a minimum.

Time after time teams have almost fully developed a play, only to have the screech of the referee's whistle stop the play as the attacking side moved over the blue line into the opponents' defending area.

Ross advances a new rule, which he claims, will be of a distinct advantage to the attacking club and at the same time will keep action on the ice, which, after all, is what the spectators come to see.

Ross would supplement the present blue line with a red line drawn directly across center ice. He would permit attacking players to cross the defenders' blue line the moment the puck carrier crosses the red line at center ice.

They would thus be ahead of the puck, going into the defending zone, but the puck carrier would not be permitted to pass to them until he had carried the rubber over the last blue line himself.

Ross Thinks New Rules Will Speed Up Game

Ross believes that there will be less whistle blowing for the reason that players on the attacking side will be permitted to go into the defending zone ahead of the puck. They will not go so far ahead that they will leave themselves at the mercy of the defending team, should the play be broken up at the blue line.

The second major change recommended by Ross is designed to prevent shooting the puck the length of the ice. He suggests a rule as follows:

"The defending team, having shot the puck from its defending zone into the defending zone of its opponent, must carry the puck into the neutral zone before this team can again shoot the puck from its defending zone. For breach of this rule the penalty face-off will be ordered against the offending team."

Manager Ross and Lester Patrick are agreed that with the new and novel methods of attack as devised under the modern code that a team which is short-handed is under a terrific disadvantage, and want a change in the penalty rule.

Change in Penalty Rules Proposed

At present, a minor penalty calls for a two-minute banishment of a player.

Manager Ross proposes a change in the penalty code as follows: When a player is penalized for a minor fault, he shall be given five minutes in the penalty box, but a substitute shall immediately take his place on the ice, and thus both teams will always have a full complement of six players throughout the game.

There will, therefore, not be any instances of one team trying to stave off another with four or five men against a full team of six.

A further consideration is that, as is the case in basketball, three minor fouls will banish a player for the rest of the game. The last proposal is subject to further consideration.

Major penalties would be increased to 10 or possibly 15 minutes with the same substitute provision.

If the latter rule is put into effect, it is felt by the proposers that referees will no longer be hesitant in calling many minor fouls which they now overlook because of the seriousness of depriving one of the teams of the services of a player for two minutes.

Weinert Turns Pro

New York, Jan. 14 (INS)—Jack Weinert, national amateur heavyweight boxing champion in 1930, will make his professional debut here shortly.

ADAMS WINNER IN MAT BOUT

Paul Adams of Macon, Ga., a popular boy with the mat fans who attend the Massachusetts Wrestling Association shows, put over a fall on Jimmy Trephon of Florida in last night's feature contest at Mechanics Building.

In the semifinal, Jack Conley of Providence threw Nick Coste, Italy, in 15.20 with an airplane whirl; while in a special, Ted Germaine, South Boston, topped Harry Landry, Vermont, in 13.13, with a spread eagle.

The other bouts resulted as follows: "Dynamite" Dunn, New York, defeated Ed Roberts, New Jersey, 8.30, airplane whirl; Art Flynn, Lawrence, vs. Frank Lewick, Lithuania, 10-minute draw; "Wild Bill" Dolan, Dedham, vs. Dick Brew, Canada, 10-minute draw; Sahib Seibek, Turkey, vs. Charles Linnehan, California, 15-minute draw; Fred Bruno, New York, vs. Winn Roberts, Pawtucket, 15-minute draw; Jim Walters, Holy Cross, defeated Tony Papolino, Italy, 11.25, flying tackle.

Strangler Lewis to Wrestle at Garden

Ed "Strangler" Lewis, one of the most colorful of modern day wrestlers, has abandoned the "circuit" over which he once was champion.

This was indicated today in an announcement by Ray Fabiani, Boston and Philadelphia wrestling promoter, that the Strangler would "rassle" an unnamed opponent at the Boston Garden on Jan. 22.

Big Advance Sale for Chicago Bout

Chicago, Jan. 14 (INS)—Despite depression unemployment and hard times, more than 16,000 fight fans managed to scrape together the price of admission to the Paulino Uzcudun-King Levinsky battle here tomorrow night, promoters announced today. Levinsky rules a 7 to 5 favorite.

Bobby Jones Christens New Course With a Hole in One

Augusta, Ga., Jan. 14 (INS)—The Augusta national golf course, being constructed here under the supervision of Bobby Jones, had received a premature, but fitting, christening today.

Jones, in a practice round yesterday, made a hole in one on the 136-yard 14th. Victories have been common to the retired champion, but few pleased him as much as this feat.

Bobby performed the feat only once before—at the East Lake course in 1923. He turned the trick with the same club that he used yesterday—his trusty No. 4 iron.

SONNENBERG BEGINS NEW DRIVE FOR TITLE

DYNAMITER TO BATTLE BARTUSH

Complete Card at Arena Tonight

MAIN EVENT

Billy Bartush (Uni. of Chicago) vs. Gus Sonnenberg (former champion). (Finish match, best 2 out of 3 falls).

SEMI-WINDUP

Nick Lutze (Southern California) vs. Jim Browning (Missouri). (One fall match, 30 minute time limit).

PRELIMINARIES

Tommy Texis (Greece) vs. Leo Numa (Univ. of Washington).

"Fats" Carmichael (William & Mary) vs. Marvin Westenberg (Tacoma College).

Henry Irslinger (Australia) vs. Lloyd Stewart (Boston).

Harry Cornsweet (Brown University) vs. Charlie Leahman (Ohio University).

Jake Patterson (Syracuse University) vs. Joe DeVito (Italy).

"Buck" Weaver (University of Chicago) vs. William Nelson (Sweden).

Raoul Simon (France) vs. John Maloney (Boston).

By RINGSIDE

Gus Sonnenberg and his famous flying tackle will return to the local mat wars when the former Dartmouth hero clashes with Billy Bartush of Chicago in a finish bout, best two falls out of three, at the Arena tonight.

Sonny is once more fired with a desire to win back his lost world's heavyweight championship. He feels that if he can defeat Bartush and then go on to knock off some more first class opposition that he will force Henri DeGlane to give him a return match.

It was Sonny's flying tackle that made wrestling a major league sport. Championship wrestling bouts seldom drew more than $10,000 before the old Dynamiter started wrecking the opposition. In the two years he held the title, Sonny drew more than $1,000,000 at the gate.

Bartush feels he will upset the Sonnenberg surge. Jim Londos repeatedly refused to take on the Chicago warrior. Just now Sonny isn't dodging anybody as he is eager to prove he is the class of his division. This is why he consented to enter the ring with Bartush.

Browning and Lutze in Limited Bout

Jim Browning, scissors king, and Nick Lutze of California will collide in a time limit bout of 30 minutes. Browning and Lutze are expected to furnish a stirring tussle. Each of these warriors were eager to clash in a finish tussle, but this was impossible in view of the fact the Sonny-Bartush tussle was a finish affair, best two falls out of three.

McDonald Re-elected Head of Met. Club

The officers who guided the destinies of the Metropolitan Driving Club last year were re-elected in their entirety for the coming year at the annual meeting of the organization at its Charles River Speedway clubhouse last night. W. J. McDonald will again handle the reins as president.

He will have as vice-presidents George A. Graves, George Hicks, Arthur P. Felton, George a Norton, Harry Thayer, W. J. Furbush and James A. Carrig. John H. Gilbody will continue as secretary-treasurer, while Dr. James T. McGlynn will reassume the duties of chairman of the racing committee for another year.

Wakefield Wins From Winchester

Wakefield High gained an edge in the Mystic Valley Basketball league competition when it defeated Winchester High, 20 to 15, at Wakefield yesterday.

The two teams are regarded as the outstanding contenders for the title and Wakefield showed its strength when it won without the services of two regulars, Capt. [illegible] and Richards.

Winchester seconds defeated Wakefield seconds, 13 to 10, in the other game.

Jack Conway Picks Sonny to Win Over Bartush

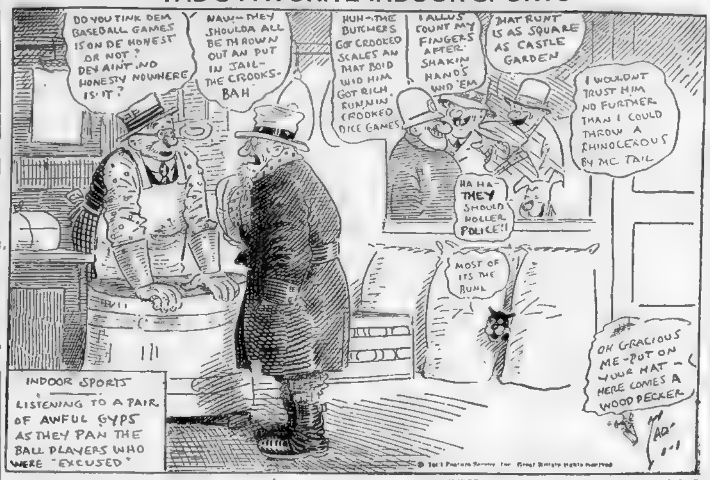

Jack Conway today picked Gus Sonnenberg to win from Billy Bartush in their finish mat bout at the Arena tonight.

Jack didn't try to pick the victor of the bout between Jim Browning and Nick Lutze in view of the fact it is a 30-minute time limit affair, and not a finish affair.

Conway's 1932 record follows:

EAGLES TO PLAY EIGHT GAMES

Little Center College of Danville, Ky., will play Boston College on Columbus Day next fall at Fenway Park, according to the Eagle grid schedule for 1932 handed out today by Graduate Manager of Athletics John P. Curley.

The "Praying Colonels," small in numbers but very large in roseate football tradition, have eased Fordham out of one of the best dates on the B. C. football bookings.

This 1932 B. C. schedule is one that leaves the Eagles in a way to make a little money and not to merely escape the wrong side of the ledger, as has been habitual at the Heights.

Three non-paying opponents, Catholic University, Dayton University of Dayton, Ohio, and Georgetown, have been side-tracked for teams that will leave the Eagles with a slight profit.

With three opponents removed from a 10-game list, Loyola of Baltimore has been added to make it an eight-game program. Loyola is coached by Tony Comerford, once a famous B. C. end. Comerford had great success at Loyola and brought his team to Worcester last fall to give Holy Cross its toughest game with a small college. Loyola just missed out on a win, being crushed by a last-minute H. C. drive.

Fordham to Play Here Oct. 29

Along with Loyola, Western Maryland will also make a Boston debut next football season. B. C. licked Western Maryland last fall at Baltimore.

Fordham has relinquished its Columbus Day date to Centre, but the Major Cavanaugh team will be here on October 29.

For the first time since the early days of B. C.-H. C. rivalry the game will be played in Worcester. This arrangement was agreed upon last year and will be continued on a home-and-home basis.

The 1932 B. C. schedule:

Oct. 1—Loyola.
Oct. 12—Centre.
Oct. 22—Marquette at Milwaukee.
Oct. 29—Fordham.
Nov. 5—Villanova.
Nov. 11—Western Maryland.
Nov. 19—B. U.
Nov. 26—Holy Cross at Worcester.

Morenz Shoots Goal to Win Thrilling Tilt

For many years, Henry Disken has been the leading hockey authority in Canada. He has followed both the professional and amateur teams. He has traveled with Les Canadiens and the Montreal Maroons and his hockey articles, which he writes for the Hearst papers, have been featured by Canadian newsprints.

AS TOLD TO BILL GRIMES

By Henry Disken

I have witnessed many thrilling hockey matches and several stand out in my mind as really great games. The greatest game I can remember was played in the Montreal Forum on March 31, 1927, and I hope I haven't my dates mixed.

Les Canadiens and Montreal Maroons were playing the second game of the semi-finals in the play-off series. The first game, two nights previous, these teams had played a tie with the score 1 to 1.

An ordinary scheduled game between Canadiens and Maroons is sure to be packed with enough thrills to suit the most exacting fans, so to be lucky enough to sit in on an elimination game in the Stanley Cup series, sure rates as some gift from the gods of hockey.

Howie Morenz, and I consider Howie the greatest star in professional hockey, was at the top of his form, and if ever the old slogan, "As Morenz goes so goes the Canadiens," ever held true it worked overtime in that series and more so in that particular game.

An unexpected aspect was the clean playing of both teams in this last deciding game. Munro and Lepine, two of the cleanest players, both received two minor penalties each.

There were no more. I have often figured it out that the speed of the Flying Frenchmen was so terrific that Maroons had enough work cut out for them to defend their goal without resorting to hard checking, not forgetting the danger that both clubs recognized in playing short handed in such a tough series.

Teams Deadlocked as Game Nears End

Morenz was a serious threat in all three periods and he missed many chances. The first and second periods were played without a score and the third period was drawing to a close with the teams deadlocked, 0 to 0. It looked like overtime and another tie.

In the dying moments of the final period, Howie grabbed the puck from Seibert as Babe came sweeping in on Hainsworth. Looping back of his own net, the "Streak" came tearing down the ice, as only Howie can tear, and crossed the blue line into the Maroon zone.

Munro and Red Dutton closed in on him for what looked like a perfect wedge. It appeared that Howie thought so, too, but those who can remember that play have more than a fair idea of why Morenz is a great star and a leading goal getter.

Howie had stopped short, as if satisfied his chance had passed. He slipped the puck forward between the two threatening defensemen and it lay several feet behind them on the ice.

Like a flash Howie leaped and hit Munro and Dutton like a flying wedge and he broke them apart for a spread of several feet. Free he had the puck on his stick and swung toward the net.

A rifle shot went hurling at Clint Benedict in the Maroon goal and he never had a chance to save.

Score Smashes Chance of Maroon Victory

The entire play was lightning fast and the most thrilling I have ever seen. The red light was shining brightly for a Canadien victory and the championship hopes of the Maroons and their supporters were smashed for that season.

The bell rang ending the game as the referee brought the puck back to center ice for a faceoff.

So, my greatest game was watching "Les Canadiens go as Howie Morenz went," into the Stanley cup finals with Ottawa in 1927.

Schoolboy Notes

—By GEORGE W. GRIMM—

George Parker, captain of the Rindge Tech football team, is now working out with the basketball five under the eye of Coach Tommy Murphy.

Parker, along with Spitter, the captain, is one of Rindge Tech's two veterans, and Coach Murphy has a big job cut out to get his team in the Tech tourney again this year. Both veterans play at the guard positions.

Jack Stobo, one of Rindge Tech's football stars, is a new luminary on the squad. Stobo is after a forward berth and has been doing fast work in the practice sessions.

Somerville, led by the eagle-eyed Joe Wilson, is expected to retain its championship in the Suburban League. Somerville looked bad against Medford, but beat out Cambridge Latin in its first league contest, 35 to 26.

"Izzy" Harris, small basketball star from the South End, is starring for the Bridgton five. Those who have played against or with "Izzy" in the Cathedral district claim he is one of the greatest basketball players in New England.

Two members of the stellar South Boston high football eleven of last fall are after berths on the strong track team that Coach Steve White is moulding. They are Johnny Ferrari, who runs the 600, and Eddie Flaherty, a dashman.

Cathedral high's basketball five will open its season against St. Clement's tonight at the Medford Junior high school in a Catholic League game.

B. U. IS TO PICK GRID COACH

The first important meeting of the newly appointed Boston University Athletic Council will take place tomorrow afternoon for the purpose of selecting a new football coach staff for the coming season.

It appears that a hectic battle will take place as some of the members favor the installation of a graduate coaching staff, while others want Reggie Brown, the Terriers' former mentor, brought back.

Those who favor the idea of graduate control are rooting for Roger "Moose" Washburn, who is at present an instructor at the College of Business Administration.

Washburn captained the Terriers in 1922 and for the past two years he has been coaching the freshman team.

NEW BRAVES HURLER HAS FINE RECORD

By JOE CASHMAN

It's hard to believe that any pitcher could be a winner in the minor leagues for 12 years without ever getting a real trial in the main tent, yet that has been the experience of Leo Mangum, Braves' draftee from Newark.

Despite his feat of winning more than two-thirds of his games in the bushes only three big league teams ever gave him a tumble and none of them gave him an opportunity to prove his worth.

The White Sox fired him without trying him out because he refused to change his style. The Senators sold him before looking him over. He was permitted to start one game for the Giants but was back in the tall grass the next day because he showed a little wildness.

He hopes to get a fair trial from the Braves and promises to make good, if he does.

George Whitted, former star outfielder of the Braves, gave Mangum his start back in 1920. Both come from the same town, Durham, N. C. Whitted, then with the Pirates, saw Leo hurling on the Durham sandlots and persuaded Barney Dreyfus to sign the youngster up.

New Hurler Pitched No-Hit, No-Run Game

The new Tribal moundsman attained the goal over every pitcher in his very first pro game by turning in a no-hit, no-run performance. That was in 1921 at Albany, N. Y., where the Pirates had placed him. Later that season he hurled another perfect game for Portsmouth, Va. Pie Traynor was one of his supporting cast that afternoon.

The following year, the Pirates had Mangum at Wichita Falls, St. Joe and Minneapolis. He won eight out of nine games for the Millers but the Bucs failed to recall him.

He won 14 straight at Minneapolis in '24 when the White Sox bought him. He was never permitted to get off the Pale Hose bench, however, because he refused to change his style and the next season, he was farmed out to Portland, Ore. A total of 21 victories against 17 defeats was his record in the Coast League and he was sent to the Senators.

Again his stay in the majors was brief. During spring training he was sold to Buffalo. He scored 22 victories, including seven shut outs and lost but seven games there. The Bisons won the pennant and Leo earned a trial with the Giants only to be sent back after one start. He won 18 and lost nine and last year won 15 and lost nine.

Minor League Record of New Hurler Promising

Leo is 33 years old, six feet tall and weighs 185 pounds. He now makes his home with his wife and young son in Lima, O.

Whether he has the stuff to stick with the Braves remains to be seen but it's certain that his minor league record entitles him to plenty of consideration from Manager Bill McKechnie.

The Daily Dozen

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY

Jack The Giant Killer

If Charlie Stoneham, president of the Giants, persists on sending out any more cut-price contracts, he won't have to worry about the player limit of 23 men.

At the rates Stoneham specifies in his 1932 contracts, the Giants will rightfully belong in the cellar. The bargain basement.

You can't make bread without dough. Nor a good ball team.

It looks as if the players the Giants will be able to sign at current figures will be those with astigmatism. Players who see double.

And such players won't be much good on a ball team. They'd try to take two bases on four balls.

Baseball depression doesn't give fans an even break. The number of umpires will also be reduced from three to two. One less target for bottles.

It seems that baseball magnates are getting like the new ball. A little thicker.

And managers better stay onside.

Answer to Charlie A. Neelo: You can't get a drink out of a musical bar, no matter how loud you holler.

When Corbett Beat Sullivan for Title

WHICH?

"I Did It Once Too Often."

John L. Sullivan after the fight

This cartoon was published in the New York Morning Journal the day after the fight.

This series of "Finishes of Old-Time Fights" is appearing daily in the Sports Section of the Boston Evening American.

Today we tell you of the twenty-first and final round of the Jim Corbett-John L. Sullivan championship fight. It was held at New Orleans on September 7, 1892.

By W. S. Farnsworth

The bell. John came up O. K. again after the beating from the previous round. He led with a weak left. Corbett was watching for an opening. The house was now all Corbett.

John sparred for Jim but Jim jabbed him as he pleased. Fiercely Corbett fought the almost helpless champion to the rope and banged with rights and lefts at will.

Sullivan fell three times. He tried to get up and fell supinely back again, clearly knocked out.

Blood was pouring from his mouth and nose as he was lifted into his corner.

The old champion had given up his laurels and James J. Corbett stood in the center of the ring—the new champion of the world. He was showered with bouquets, his friends embracing him, and the wildest scene of excitement ever seen in the Southern club ensued.

The time of the fight was one hour and twenty-three minutes.

Corbett didn't have a solitary scratch on him.

As the moments passed and Corbett stood waiting all eyes were fixed on Sullivan who lay back in his chair gasping. In about three minutes Sullivan slowly raised himself in his chair and began speaking to his seconds. The crowd could not hear him, and yells of "Sullivan! Speech!" rent the air.

John arose and Corbett crossed quickly over and shook hands with him. Sullivan tried to address the crowd. His voice was very hoarse as he said:

"Gentlemen, all I have to say is that I stayed once too long in the ring, and that I am glad America has so good a new champion."

EFFORT WILL GOVERN SALES VOLUME

By B. C. FORBES

"How can anyone forecast 1932 volume of sales unless he can forecast the kind of selling that is to be done?"

That question was shot at me by Paul G. Hoffman, right-hand man of E. P. Erskine, generalissimo of Studebaker. Mr. Hoffman, young, vigorous, outstanding, impressive specimen of manhood, has earned the right to talk about selling because he built up in California, at an extraordinarily early age, an amazingly successful automobile selling business. He had earned a fortune by the time the average fellow begins to find his feet. It was his unique record that won the notice of Mr. Erskine.

"There is altogether too fatalistic an attitude in this country today," vehemently declared Mr. Hoffman. "Too many people talk as if we are all wholly at the mercy of circumstances and can do nothing whatsoever about it. This mental attitude of surrender, this willingness to accept defeat, is utterly un-American. America was not built up by any such supine spirit.

"Things don't just happen—they have to be made to happen. While it may not be literally true that we are masters of our own fate, nevertheless it is less true that we are powerless to shape our own fate, that we are powerless to mold circumstances, and that we are powerless to overcome difficulties.

"How many automobiles will be sold this year will depend a very great deal on the amount of ingenuity, initiative, brains, effort and enterprise put into selling. The companies that will do better than others are the ones that do the best selling job. Even the very finest product has to be sold these days.

"Let sales managers and salesmen get it into their heads that upon them depends in no small measure the degree of progress to be made by America between now and the end of the year. It is up to all of us to exert ourselves as never before to cause things to happen. And we can do it!"

Advertising Still Paying

Robert W. Woodruff, president of a leading soft drink concern, who is in New York attending the Automobile Show in his capacity as chairman of White Motor, tells me that the soft drink company actually succeeded in earning more money last year than in 1930.

A New York financier recently told me that he regarded Bob Woodruff as the ablest of all America's younger generation of business executives. He is, too, one of the most modest. It was only with difficulty that I drew from him that his company went ahead last year despite conditions. When I asked him how it was done, instead of claiming any credit for himself, he replied:

"We spent a million dollars more in advertising than we did in 1930. That enabled us to increase our profits. But," he added, as if that sounded boastful, "our gain was really not enough to speak about—only some five percent."

How many business men would feel they had performed miracles if they had even held their own last year?

Good Prospects for 1932

Another industrial company president, Harlow H. Curtice has just achieved an extraordinary record.

Mr. Curtice tells me that, while last year was quite a satisfactory one with them, this year promises to be very much better. He is employing some 40 per cent more workers than a year ago and is energetically expanding manufacturing facilities.

Automobile visitors, in common with most other business visitors to New York, complain that the atmosphere in New York is so depressing they speedily escape from it and have no desire to get into it a second time. Somehow, these stalwarts from different parts of the country strike one as having more backbone, more determination, more go-getism.

UNDERWOOD'S SALES ARE UP

New York, Jan. 14—Sales of Underwood Elliott Fischer Co. increased consistently during the last three months of 1931, billings in December being more than $350,000 over November, or nearly three times the increase in December, 1930, billings over its preceding month, Philip D. Wagoner, president of the company, told a conference of executives here.

The proportion of export sales increased steadily from the low point in July to December, in which it was approximately the same proportion as that of December, 1930 he stated, the export business of the supply division being the largest in its history.

"We have made more vital improvements and introduced more important new models in the last 12 months than in the preceding 12 years. The market for bookkeeping and accounting machines is only 10 to 15 per cent sold. The typewriter division, after more than 40 years of existence, still has a smaller proportion of trade-in sales than the automobile industry, so that prospects for future business are favorable," Mr. Wagoner said.

He added that the full effect of the October wage adjustment has not yet been realized, this economy representing less than 9 per cent of the more than $5,500,000 annual equivalent of savings effected during the depression.

Shoe Production Shows an Increase

New York Hide Exchange preliminary shoe production estimate that in direct contrast to the usual seasonal decline in the output of footwear, the production registered a marked and unusual increase during December when 19,200,000 pairs were manufactured against 18,470,000 pairs in November and an increase of about 10 per cent over December, 1930.

The upturn in production last month brought total for the year to 315,836,000 pairs, or 3.8 per cent over the output during 1930, regardless of the fact that production during the first two months of last year was appreciably below the corresponding months in 1930.

'Pennsy' Loadings Increase in Week

Pennsylvania Railroad System in the week ended Jan. 9 handled 89,319 revenue cars, as against 78,873 last week and 106,146 in 1931.

From Jan. 1 cars totaled 168,192, as against 201,504 in the same 1931 period.

STAMP GIVES GOLD VIEWS

Birmingham, Eng., Jan. 14 (AP)—Sir Josiah Stamp, director of the Bank of England, told the Chamber of Commerce today there is a great deal of "mischievous misunderstanding" abroad regarding the circumstances under which Great Britain departed from the gold standard.

The criticism began in the United States, he said, and has come also from Holland and Austria.

"It has become a sort of parrot cry abroad to say that it was England which abandoned the gold standard, not the gold standard which abandoned England," he said, "and I believe it to be profoundly wrong."

To have increased the bank rate last July and Auust would have been to increase foreign apprehension, he said, and the balances which might have been attracted by such a method would soon have become a source of danger.

"Any position maintained by such measures," said he, "would have to meet its day of reckoning, and the state of other countries now, three months later, does not show that they would have permanently postponed their demands. The passion for liquidity which makes everything too solid to move was on the world already."

Carnegie Steel Co. Operations Higher

Carnegie Steel Company operations at Youngstown are slightly under 40 per cent, compared with 30 to 35 per cent recently, and less than 30 per cent in the last two weeks of December, according to dispatches.

Seven of the 15 open hearths are melting and the Bessemer department at the Ohio works is more active than recently, it was stated. Increased automobile steel requirements account for the improvement.

A year ago Carnegie was operating at 50 per cent in the Youngstown district.

Superpower's Net Is 4 Cents a Share

American Superpower Corp for the year ended Dec 31, 1931, reports a net income, including $16,748 profit on sales and commissions, of $3,444,462 after expenses, federal taxes, etc. This was equal after dividends on the preferred of 4 cents a share on 8,293,005 shares of common.

In 1930 the company reported a net income, including $2,381,247 profit on sales and commissions of $8,213,474, equivalent to 38 cents a common share.

Financial News, Stocks, Bonds and Comment

—STATE ST.— Hears:

That the market has exceeded the most optimistic forecasts. It does not seem likely prices will be allowed to run away on the upside at this time. Because of this, and widespread tips that today will be a red letter bull day, it seems advisable to formulate some plan to take profits. Also what many consider ill-advised inflationary talk has brought in a fair amount of weak buying.

Market Policy

The list of shares followed in this space have, in the majority of cases, good paper profits. Admitting as before, that picking, or judging the extent of technical reactions during a bull trend is extremely hazardous, it is none the less suggested that 50 per cent of present paper profits be converted to cash. Although correction of the advance and elimination of weak longs may be delayed a few days patience should be exercised and commitments should not be replaced until a dip has been seen. As for the reaction itself, when it does arrive it should be quite swift even though prices retrace a good part of their average gains.

It is entirely possible that correction will be so swift that it is completed in one session. Shorting for the turn is out of the question, as the market is firmly entrenched in an uptrend. One happening could change the picture. It is a four or five-million share turnover achieving little forward progress.

Federal Reserve Policy

In connection with "inflation" it is a genuine pleasure to find competent observers modifying their former positions. They now feel that the Federal Reserve is launching an attack on deflation well within its proper province. By lowering the buying rate on bankers acceptances, the reserve automatically cheapens credit. This pumps credit into the banks who, in turn, pass on to commerce and industry more favorable borrowing terms. In this way the withdrawals of hoarders are offset and the original balance between circulation and normal loan demand is restored. This is by no means inflation, while it is legitimate credit expansion during a period of stress.

The lure of higher yields on government bond issues is finally drawing funds that would otherwise find their way into savings accounts. It is now a question of how long hoarders will be satisfied with non-interest bearing holdings.

Nantasket Boats Run at a Loss

Nantasket Beach Steamboat Co reports for year ended Dec. 31, 1931, a loss after charges, of $74,756, compared with net profit in 1930 equivalent to $1.23 per share on the 10,000 shares ($50 par) outstanding. Earnings in previous years on 10,000 $100 par shares were: 1929, $4.01; 1928, $3.41; 1927 deficit of $36,270. During 1930 capitalization was reduced from $1,000,000 to $500,000 by halving par value of the stock and distributing $50 per share in cash to stockholders.

Number of passengers carried during the year reached 947,772 compared with 795,868 in the previous year.

STEEL ACTION ON DIVIDEND IS AWAITED

By FRANK H. McLOON

Action of U. S. Steel on the $4 annual dividend payment is awaited with great interest in Wall and State sts. Action will be definitely taken Jan. 26. Bullish rumors were circulated that the dividend would be maintained at the current rate despite the fact that the pickup, if any, in the industry has so far been nothing remarkable, to put it mildly. J. P. Maher, former financial editor of the New York American, now presenting the views of a big stock exchange house, says:

"The latest report, circulated by those who have been most active on the long side, was that the Steel Corporation directors would continue the $4 dividend rate at meeting Jan. 26. The same sources believed the recent tonnage report would show an increase for December. Those who were correct in estimating Steel's unfilled orders feel that the dividend will be reduced to $3 at least. Any other action, under present conditions of the trade and the corporation's business, would be more bearish for the long pull than bullish."

Feature of the week's elections in Boston's outstanding financial institutions was the choice of Robert B. Rugg to succeed his father Frederick W. Rugg as president of the National Rockland Bank. Comparatively few banks have seen the mantle of the presidency passed from father to son. The great Boston Five Cents Savings Bank however, appears to hold the record in this line. When Wilmot R. Evans was made president of that institution about six years ago, he carried the presidency into the third generation of the family.

W. R. Evans

Mr. Evans' grandfather started with the Boston Five Cents Savings Bank when it was incorporated more than 75 years ago. The grandfather served as its president for more than 40 years, relinquishing the post to his son, who held it until 1926.

Estimates of automotive sales for 1932 vary considerably, but all made to date teem with optimism. This shows a much better sentiment than prevailed a year ago, whatever ultimate results may be. Last year saw about 1,800,000 cars sold. John W. Scoville, chief statistician of Chrysler Corp., in a survey made public by Walter P. Chrysler, sees an increase of as much as 20 per cent in automotive production this year. Others think 1932 sales will reach the 3,000,000 mark. The replacement market is expected to call for 2,700,000 cars.

In 1930 total production in the United States and Canada amounted to 3,510,178 cars. Of these 2,910,187 were passenger vehicles and 599,991 were trucks. The total production of passenger cars in the United States in recent years was as follows: 1927, 3,083,360; 1928, 4,012,158; 1929, 4,794,898; 1930, 2,910,187.

• • •

Motor truck production, associated by many with current railroad difficulties, shows a differing trend. Figures for the recent years follow: 1927, 497,020; 1928, 588,983; 1929, 826,817, 1930, 599,991. Note the increase in truck production in the United States for 1930 over 1928 while the auto output was running off.

Business Upturn Is Called Near

"The time is near at hand when we shall once again feel we are in the upswing of the business cycle," says Thomas J. Watson, president of International Business Machines Corp. and president of the Merchants Association of New York.

International Business Machines, Mr. Watson declared, will erect a new engineering laboratory this year at the company's Endicott plant and will spend at least $1,000,000 in research work.

Tennessee to Get Loan of $2,000,000

New York, Jan. 14—Tentative arrangements have been completed for the sale of $2,000,000 bonds and notes by the State of Tennessee to the Chemical Bank & Trust Co., Chase National Bank, National City Bank and the American National Bank of Nashville.

Half of the new securities will represent bonds maturing in 1941 and the balance in notes which will mature in three and six months.

No public offering will be made, the banks retaining the securities.

Electric Output Declines in Week

New York, Nov. 11—Electric output in the United States for the week ended Jan 9 totaled 1,619,265,000 k. w. h., a decrease of 5½ per cent from the 1,713,804,000 k. w. h., in the like week of 1931, according to the National Electric Light Association.

In the preceding week output was down 4.6 per cent from a year ago, the association reported.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

THERE was an air of confidence displayed in the stock and bond markets today, which stood out in bold relief against the deep gloom prevailing recently. In both markets broad advances were witnessed. Many explanations were offered to explain the widespread confidence which suddenly enveloped the markets, but none was so impressive as the sharp turn about in government quotation.

Nash Motor's Balance Sheet

A study of the Nash Motors balance sheet reflects the ability of corporate managements to maintain a strong financial position despite the years of depression which have gone before. On November 30 last the company's current assets were about 14 times current liabilities, with the outstanding stock the only capital liability. Cash and government securities totalled approximately $26,500,000, equal to $13 a share on the stock. Attention has been called by one commission house to the fact that although total earnings in 1930 and 1931 amounted to about $12,000,000 and dividend payments totalled $23,000,000, the company's cash holding, or the equivalent, decreased only $5,500,000 from the peak in the history of the organization.

Watching the Motor Show

It has been many years since financial and stock market interests have shown as much interest in the automobile show as at present. Many have visited the display and examined the various models closely with the idea of attempting to select the companies most likely to attract the public with its products.

Favorable reports regarding attendance and sales have been made but most observers are inclined to wait six to eight weeks in order to judge the actual demand of the public in all sections of the country.

Freeport Texas Earnings' Prospect

Net of Freeport Texas last year is expected to be about $3.25 a share, compared with $4.28 in the preceding 12 months. Interests in the company are looking for an improvement in the near future, particularly if the production of manganese from the Cuban properties by a new flotation process proves as successful as many now anticipate.

U. S. Pipe & Foundry Dividend

Although U. S. Pipe & Foundry earnings in the final half of last yeard were poor, adding little to the $913,954 reported for the first half, it is still confidently expected that directors will continue the current $2 a share annual dividend on the common stock because of the strong financial condition of the company. A year ago this month the directors declared the four quarterly dividends on the stock and this action might be repeated shortly.

Speculative Buying In Low Priced Rails

Speculative interest appears to be reawakening in shares of railroads which failed to earn fixed charges last year. Some of these have doubled in price the last few days on the belief that the promise of indirect governmental aid through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has eliminated the danger of receiverships. Another element held to account for their improved market action is the actual operation of the plan for pooling revenues under the partial rate increases granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission last fall. Several of the stocks now finding favor are quoted for less than the cash dividends they paid in 1931.

Utility Stocks Behind Market

Backwardness of utility stocks during late rallying periods reflects reluctance of their sponsors to extend aggressive support for the time being. This disposition is said to be based on the uncertain rate outlook in many of the leading consumption centers. Meanwhile the sharp falling off in electricity demand compared with a year ago continues unabated. Figures showed output of current was 5.5 per cent smaller in the first full business week of the new year than in the same week of 1931 with the largest decreases in the highly industrialized districts of the country.

Auburn Rumors Again Afloat

Count the day lost when a fresh Auburn rumor fails to crop up. The latest is to the effect that the original group responsible for bringing the stock into market prominence early last year has not abandoned its position. Instead according to the gossip, it has taken on additional commitments and now virtually controls the entire floating supply.

Bankers Credited With Central Buying

Bankers are generally credited as the principal buyers of New York Central during the present recovery.

Tin Plate Tonnage On Larger Scale

Covering operations in the shares of leading tin plate manufacturing concerns is explained by trade reports that some large tonnage contracts were closed toward the end of 1931 for delivery during the next three months. These advices, however, state the aggregate business obtained was less than the forward requirements arranged for at this time in former years. This, of course, indicates that the can makers are buying more sparsely because of the large inventories carried over from last year.

Reformed Bear In Westinghouse

It was stated in market quarters that the chief bull sponsor for Westinghouse Electric currently is one of the individuals who had been most active on the bear side of the stock until recently.

North American Aviation Changes

An entirely new group of stockholders now dominates the affairs of North American Aviation; their power was invoked to effect the shift in management.

MARKET VIEWS OF BROKERS

Shields & Co.—The market continues a day to day trading affair. If the newspapers continue to foster idea that railroad wage cut will be accepted today or tomorrow another runup could be expected. The probability of such reports being misleading, however, warrants the utmost caution in following rallies.

Whitney & Elwell.—Later in the month the market will have to contend with reparations discussions at Lausanne as well as possible important dividend reductions. For a time at least the trend of the market seems definitely upward.

D. M. Collins & Co.—In addition to short covering better buying has been witnessed than for several sessions, yet this is no time to lose sight of a lethargic trade situation.

Hornblower & Weeks.—With the line of least resistance still on the upside, we see no reason for withdrawing from the market at this time if stocks were recently bought for trading purposes.

Edward B. Smith & Co.—We feel that the market may continue its advance, subject to minor reactions.

Hemphill, Noyes & Co.—We look for the rally to continue.

White Rock Springs Net Income Lower

White Rock Mineral Springs reports net income for the year ended December 31, 1931, of $1,124,165 after charges and taxes, as against $1,315,394 in 1930.

Company declared the regular quarterly dividends of $1 on the common, $1.75 on the first preferred and $5 on the second preferred, all payable April 1 to stock of record March 15.

—SPECTATOR— Says:

The stock market is now securely perched on top of the heap, having convincingly broken through remaining resistance levels on the upside. Incidentally, to quiet any criticism on the part of sceptics, it forged ahead on a volume of turnover 50 per cent larger than that of the previous day, a definite indication that speculative leanings at the moment are decidedly bullish.

Chart Data

Chartwise, some interesting information is disclosed. The theory has been that rallying periods in bear markets are entitled to recover at least 50 per cent of the ground lost in the previous reaction.

Turning first to the rails, we find that from the high on November 10 this group, measured by the Dow-Jones averages, fell back to a low of 31.36 on January 5. A normal 50 per cent recovery would carry this section up to approximately 44 in the index. Yesterday's top level at 41 was within a short distance of this rally point.

Industrials

In the industrials there is considerable more ground to traverse on the upside before important resistance should be encountered for the 50 per cent rally point is approximately aruond the 84 level, as against yesterday's close of 84.36.

In other words, for the first time in a lengthy period, it is the rail group which has been furnishing the leadership on the advance, and if favorable news is forthcoming from today's conference of rail executives and labor leaders, then it is altogether possible that the rail group will be able to penetrate the highly important 50 per cent mark.

Bond Consistency

The consistency of the bond market's behavior since Dec. 17 is considered the outstanding constructive factor in the whole financial situation.

BOND MARKET MOVES UPWARD

New York, Jan. 14—A further burst of strength in the rail bonds and moderate improvement in the U. S. government group featured the early trading on the listed bond market today, with the market as a whole moving ahead to reach new high levels for the year.

Improvement in the carriers was most pronounced in the more speculative issues. Missouri, Kansas & Texas adjustment 5s jumped 8¼ points, to 60, with other wide gains evidenced in Southern Railway 4s, which were up 2, at 54. Southern Railways 6½s, up 3, at 70; Southern Railway 6s, up 3¼, at 64¼; Frisco 4½s, up 1⅞, at 25⅞; Frisco 5s, up 1, at 40; Nickel Plate 6s, up 2⅛, at 50⅞; Nickel Plate 5½s, up 1, at 40; Missouri Pacific 4s, up 1⅛, at 40½, and Chicago Northwestern convertible 4¾s, up 2⅞, at 39.

Advances in the U. S. Government list were largely fractional proportions, with Liberty 3½s moving up to 96, Liberty 4th 4¼s to 99.15, Treasury 3⅜s 91.24, Treasury 3⅜s of '41 90 and Treasury 3¼s 86.3.

Foreign were irregular, with special strength evidenced in Greek 6s which were up 2¼ points at 48; Hungary 7½s up 2⅛ at 54, and Uruguay 8s up 1 at 56.

Postal Telegraph 5s was a leader in the miscellaneous section with an upturn of a point to 37.

Dividends

Pullman, Inc., declared regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents, payable Feb. 15. Three months ago the company declared a quarterly dividend of 75 cents compared with $1 paid previously.

• • •

With notice to stockholders that dividends will be dealt with semi-anually instead of quarterly, Fire Association of Philadelphia declared a dividend of 40 cents, payable Feb. 15. Previously, it had been paying 40 cents quarterly.

• • •

Dictaphone Corporation today declared quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock, placing the issue on a $1 annual basis as compared with $2 annually previously paid. Dividend is payable March 1.

Southern Railway System for the first week of January reports a gross income of $1,786,090, a decrease of $522,156 from the corresponding week of the preceeding year.

Gross income of the Mobile & Ohio Railway was $144,204 for the first week in January, a decline of $47,829 from the same week in the previous year.

Washington, Jan. 14 (AP)—Cotton consumed during December was reported today by the Census Bureau to have totaled 415,517 bales of lint and 44,491 of linters, compared with 428,870 and 52,687 in November last year and 405,518 and 43,522 in December, 1930.

STOCKS HIGHER, WITH BUYING MORE ACTIVE

New York, Jan. 14—Important shares were higher with buying more active on the New York Stock Exchange today. Gains of 1 to 3 points were fairly numerous.

Large blocks changed hands at the opening. A block of 6000 shares of Chrysler was taken at a net advance of ⅛.

BIG BLOCKS APPEAR

A 2000-share block of American Telephone changed hands up a point net. General Motors moved up ⅛ with a block of 3000 shares and General Electric gained ⅛ when a block of 2500 shares appeared on the tape.

As trading advanced, there were point or better gains for du Pont, Houston, Hershey, International Business Machines, General Electric, Canadian Pacific, Allied Chemical, American Water Works, Consolidated Gas, American Can, Macy, New Haven, Worthington, Western Union, Westinghouse Electric, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Reynolds "B," National Biscuit, National Dairy, McKeesport and others.

Shares up 3 or better included Union Pacific, Liggett & Myers "B," Lehman and American Tobacco issues. Eastman Kodak and Detroit Edison mounted 4 points.

Gains of 2 or more points came for Lambert, McCall, Colorado Fuel, Atchison and J. I. Case.

RESERVE ACTION AWAITED

Although the railroad wage negotiations in Chicago absorbed much of Wall Street's attention, there was wide interest in the weekly meeting of the New York Federal Reserve Bank directors, scheduled for late this afternoon.

Whether the board planned immediately to move in the direction of credit expansion by reducing the rediscount rate was regarded as problematical.

It was pointed out, however, that when the present rate of 3½ per cent became effective last fall the country was losing gold rapidly and other unfavorable elements existed in the banking position.

With basic conditions much improved and confidence bolstered by government moves for loosening credit, it was thought by some observers that a lower rate would be in keeping with a policy of credit expansion.

President Gifford of American Telephone told stockholders the company had fully earned its $9 dividend last year, although final figures were not yet available. Wall Street has estimated that earnings exceeded the annual payment by a small margin.

Sterling cables opened 3 cents higher at $3.44¼.

CURB MARKET AT '32 HIGHS

New York, Jan. 14—The curb market pushed ahead moderately to reach new high levels for the year today, in a boiling forenoon of trading, with a heavy increase in public buying demand, more than offsetting profit-taking of professionals.

While gains in the utility group were not in any way sensational, the improvement was more or less uniform. A better than average performance was given by United Light & Power A, which rose ⅞; American Gas & Electric, which was ¾ higher, and Electric Bond & Share, which was up ⅞. Virtually every other low-priced utility favorite was able to exceed its previous closing level and reach a new high on the move.

Cities Service reached the 6¾ level, for a net gain of ¼ and a new top on the recovery.

Oils were fractionally improved, with Gulf up ⅝, Standard of Indiana up ⅛ and Standard of Kentucky up ⅜.

M. O. Smith continued to set the pace in the specialty list, with a further rise of 1½ points. Aluminum was another early feature, chalking up a gain of 1½ points.

Hydro Electric securities made the best showing in the investment trust list with a gain of 1¼ points.

Asks Authority to Issue Gold Bonds

Washington, Jan. 14—Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad has asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to issue and deliver $3,126,000 of its 5 per cent general and refunding mortgage gold bonds to the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Securities will be guaranteed by the Pennsylvania and are in lieu of a like amount of 4½ per cent bonds.

President Walter S. Gifford of American Telephone & Telegraph Company says to the stockholders:

"While final results of the company for the year 1931 are not yet available, preliminary summaries indicate that the company earned its dividend with a small margin without taking into account its proportion of the undistributed earnings of its subsidiary companies. "The annual report of the company is in prep- in March."

Federal Reserve Errors Are Cited by Cousins

By W. S. COUSINS

New York, Jan. 14—It has always been an accepted principle that to make the reserve system really effective it is important to utilize a good share of its cash resources and its credit mechanism.

A part of the function of the reserve system is to furnish a form of insurance against money panics by setting up a gigantic reservoir of gold and banking credit, against which the winds of financial crises might blow in vain. The framers of the reserve act wisely deducted that the mere knowledge of the existence of such a reservoir would calm the nerves of many people who might otherwise be swept off their feet by unreasoning fears of various kinds.

* * *

Whatever may be said of the errors of the directors of the reserve system in keeping to bring on the terrific inflation of 1929 and the industrial collapse of the next two years, it must also be remembered that they acted with the best interests of the world at heart. Their greatest error was in dwelling too long on the European mess and sacrificing home interests in an effort to pull Europe out of the hole.

In this they were not far distant from the policies carried through by the "private bankers" in loading American investors with foreign bonds of every variety. At current prices the salvage of these bonds is well under 50 cents on the dollar, but it is hoped the market will recover with economic improvement within the boredrs of the debtor countries.

* * *

Coincident with the Senat's approval of the President's reconstruction finance measure, the New York Reserve Bank reduced its buying rate on bankers' acceptance, the immediate efect of which will be to supply credit to American business at lower rates.

At the beginning of the week the skilled advisers of the reserve system met at Washington in an effort to devise ways and means to stop the disheartening drop in commodity prices and the New York Reserve Bank's action was probably in accordance with their recommendations. If lower rates will inject a larger volume of usable credit into the markets, then by its means they should be employed to that end.

For the past two years the reserve system has relied too much on the insurance phase of its services to the country and locked up its credit resources behind technical barriers that could not be passed by the average seeker of credit.

* * *

The latest statement of the reserve system bears out this contention. Of total resources of 5716 million dollars, only 818 millions was employed in rediscounts and 275 millions in bills bought in the open market. Earlier in 1931 the volume was considerably smaller.

The reserve system last week held 765 million dollars in United States government bonds, on which prices had slumped anywhere from 2 to 18 per cent. By extending a greater measure of "support" to the government bond market the reserve banks might have prevented the final phase of the disheartening drop in United States Treasury bonds.

* * *

Having cleaned out the dregs of the 1931 deflation in most of the important industries, the reserve banks are probably considering the present time for an injection of credit inflation. If this proves no more beneficial than last year's drop in the rediscount rate to 1½ percent, it will hardly be worth the effort, but in all fairness it should be said that American industry is in better condition to utilize cheap credit than it was a year ago.

Hudson Sales Are Best for Two Years

Hudson Motor Car Co. reports, based on dispatches from its dealers in 45 key cities, as a result of a telegraphic survey, that showroom attendance and sales on the opening day of its new car showing throughout the country were substantially greater than in the past two years. This report covers 124 retail stores out of a total of 987 where new models were on display.

Orders taken at these stores were reported at 559, with attendance totaling 190,000. Conservative estimates based on these reports and supporting telegrams indicate a total attendance of approximately 750,000 people at all retail stores on opening day. Feature of sales is that practically all are for immediate delivery, instead of for spring delivery, as has been customary for a large percentage of early orders in previous years.

MUSCULAR—RHEUMATIC PAINS

DRAW them out with a "counter-irritant." Muscular lumbago, soreness and stiffness—generally respond to good old Musterole. Doctors call it a "counter-irritant" because its warming action penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. It gets action and is not just a salve. But do not stop with one application. Apply this soothing, cooling, healing ointment generously to the affected area once every hour for five hours. Used by millions for over 20 years. DEMOCRAT RADIO RALLY

Dinner Program Being Aired on WAAB

By N. F. T.

America's and particularly New England's foremost Democratic standard bearers are broadcasting tonight between 8:30 and 10 through WAAB and affiliated Yankee Network stations. Governor Ely, Mayor Curley, Alfred Smith and Woodrow Wilson's daughter, Mrs. Jesse Woodrow Sayre, will speak from the Hotel Statler during a Democratic Victory Campaign dinner.

• • •

Ceremonies get under way promptly at 8:30. Boston's Mayor goes on the waves until 8:45, when Governor Ely takes his microphone turn with an address scheduled to 9 o'clock. Owing to CBS network arrangements, the station then leaves Statler banquet tables for half an hour, plugging in again at 9:30 for 30 minutes of expression by Alfred E. Smith.

• • •

DAUGHTER OF WILSON

A distinct feature during the program, will be remarks from Mrs. Jesse Woodrow Sayre, daughter of former President Wilson. Mrs. Sayre is being received at the dinner as guest of honor extraordinary.

• • •

Building up daytime spots, particularly in the morning, is one of the avowed missions of WBZ lately. Phil Cook, whose "Okay Colonel" and other versatile bits are heard from New York between 8:15 and 8:30, is one feature arranged as part of the constructive work. Bob (Old Man Sunshine) Pierce will follow Phil Cook beginning next Monday, offering a unique presentation with his talented bulldog "Bozo." Bob has been recently heard hereabouts in connection with numerous sponsored efforts. His forthcoming daily program is likely to develop more than a few early morning ear cuppers.

• • •

Tomorrow afternoon brings an adaptation of "Forbidden," the new Columbia Pictures production, starring Barbara Stanwyck, with Adolphe Menjou as leading man. Alice (WBZ) Lamb is featured during the 15-minute dramatization. John McNamara has also been cast in the playlet, scheduled for WBZ "mikes" at 4 p. m., under RKO-Keith Theater auspices.

KINDLY CRITIC

Nick Kenny, dean of New York radio writers, expresses a kindly thought in his daily newspaper discourse yesterday, giving reasons for not "putting the blast" on many artists who might well deserve being "needled." Nick says he knows every microphone performer's mother listens in to a son or daughter and he dislikes to have a part in destroying faith in human nature.

• • •

In fact, Nick becomes quite serious when he adds that his own 74-year-old mother thinks his foghorn voice is the finest on the air.

• • •

LOCAL LATHER

They say that WBZ is letting their string ensemble "go unemployed" this Saturday . . . Will someone please verify? . . . A new more or less unknown orchestra is reported taking its place . . . Gerry (WNAC) Harrison must be credited with finding Boston's newest and very blonde broadcaster, which is referring to Joy Nelson from WJAR, Providence, a blues contralto and you won't regret having tuned in on WNAC this Sunday evening at 6:30 . . . Those three "Black Iron Blackbirds" were guest artists at Cocoanut Grove Tuesday night and scored heavily with the merry stayouts on hand . . . Billy Payne tentatively booked for Keith Theater stage work this coming week, won't open until some time in February, he says, radio demands for him being extra heavy . . . Those very weighty rumors about Kate Smith being slated for a local theater personal appearance shortly seem to have died away t oless than a whisper . . . Phoning the "colyuml" will probably reveal something of interest to Adrian O'Brien . . . Over two hundred special vocal arrangements together; that's the radio record just established by Earl Widener and his Boston Tenatones.

A Grand Old Fighter

Judge Holmes Bows to "Inevitable"

Oliver Wendell Holmes, grand old man of American jurisprudence, retires from the United States Supreme Court at the age of 91.

The world, and America especially, admires, respects and venerates Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Here we love him. We know him best. He is one of us.

Judge Holmes was born of elegant New England stock and was nurtured in the American history of New England.

From his father, the poet and essayist, he inherited his fine, simple literary style and his remarkable political, economic and legal philosophy which has endeared him to the advocates of freedom and common justice among the people of every clime.

He inherited from his mother that endurance and determination to contest for right, whether on the perilous field of battle or in the cloister of the court, where the contests for justice are both severe and gruelling.

For fifty years, twenty in our own courts and thirty at Washington, Oliver Wendell Holmes has been the friend and advocate of the common man.

Flattery, cajolement, the lure of social prestige and the threats of intrenched and powerful influences, all of these were experienced by Justice Holmes.

And all of them he resisted.

He was able by indomitable will to regain his health, after he had been left for dead on the field of battle in the Civil War, a bullet through his neck.

And he has been able, by the magnificent power of his integrity, to maintain for fifty years uncorrupted his solicitous interest in the rights of the weak and helpless and ordinary men and women, to whom justice is so often denied.

Judge Holmes will come back to us of New England, we hope and expect.

He has "bowed to the inevitable," says this grand old fighter, and we want his last years to be with us in peace and comfort. And we hope they will be many years.

No Good in Speakeasies

Now that the excitement has subsided and Commissioner Hultman has made his report to Governor Ely, there seems to have been ample cause for the sensational raids made by the Boston Police Department.

The purpose was to round up the rival gangsters involved in the Hanover street murders.

The places raided are said by the police to be speakeasies and joints of ill repute.

The men who were seized by the police and brought to police headquarters for examination were patrons, for the time being at least, of these questionable resorts.

There is an old saying that a man can be known by the company he keeps. Well, if they frequent such places, they must assume the bad odor of them and must accept such consequences as may arise.

The people of Massachusetts have a fine regard for their constitutional rights and of their guarantees against unlawful search and seizure.

But most of them would be willing to waive these rights for the moment, to see martial law declared if necessary, to put a stop to banditry, thuggery and their associated evils, which are a menace to the safety of the public and which bring odium to the fair name of the city.

May Eddie Casey Win!

Governor Ely has selected an able, courageous and honest man for the much-fought-for post as boxing commissioner in the person of Edward L. Casey, Harvard football coach. The very fact that the job was so eagerly sought for by various groups and friends of promoters probably caused the Governor to discard all the various recommendations and candidates and select an "amateur" little known to the so-called boxing game.

The Evening American has every confidence in Mr. Casey's ability and integrity. He will need plenty of both qualities if he is to keep the "game" clean. He will either whip the undesirable elements or they'll whip him.

If we were betting persons, our choice would be "Casey to win."

Those who read Mr. Casey's series of football articles written for the Boston Evening American and other Hearst papers during the past season know that he thinks clearly and has the ability to express his thoughts.

His selection will be particularly an inspiration to young men who realize the value of clean living and clean sportsmanship.

Carver, Federal Reserve

Prof. Thomas N. Carver of Harvard, the noted authority on political economy, raps the Federal Reserve Board.

The board let money flow all too freely to promote the over-expansion of the wild boom period and has shut off the supply, thus depressing business recovery.

Credit should have worked in the reverse order, like the governor of a steam engine, says Prof. Carver.

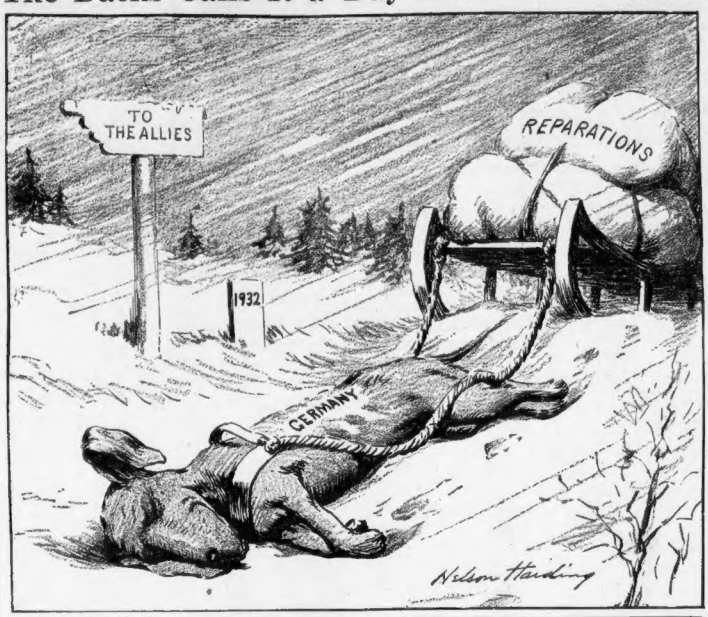

If the engine is getting too much steam, the governor shuts off the throttle. If the engine is not getting enough steam, the governor increases the supply.

Well, we could stand plenty now. Credit is confidence, and ought to be released.

The Five-Billion-Dollar Prosperity Loan as proposed by Mr. Hearst would give us a fine supply of power, and start all the wheels moving again. Prof. Carver says THIS OUGHT TO BE DONE. And without any more delay. When you get the opinion of Prof. Carver on matters like this, you get a good one.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Department of Education

WHAT'S ALL this talk about a Federal Department of Education? Why is there such an uproar when it is suggested in Congress? Haven't we the best schools in the world? Then why should the federal government come butting in?

No, we haven't the best schools in the world—nor the second, nor even the third best. Some of our states have very fine educational systems. Some have middlin' fair systems. Some have outrageously poor systems, with large areas where there are no schools at all.

AS A CONSEQUENCE, AMERICA HAS ONE OF THE HIGHEST RECORDS OF ILLITERACY AMONGST CIVILIZED NATIONS.

But won't the states attend to that?

The answer to that is short and snappy. We are over 150 year old. Washington was born 200 years ago, this year. But the states HAVEN'T attended to this matter yet, nor are most of them showing any serious intentions of getting around to it.

But suppose we do install a Department of Education in Washington, D. C., and give it the right to standardize our school systems and go after the illiterate districts—won't that violate our "state rights" agreement and put dangerous power into the hands of the government? And, goshknows, isn't there enough meddling already?

That's what several gentlemen in Washington think, and their irate states are backing them.

BUT IF THAT ARGUMENT IS TRUE, IT SHOULD APPLY TO ALL IMPORTANT STATE CONCERNS.

It should apply to our farms, our orchards, our live stock, our highways, our labor rates, our finance, our methods of transportation. Surely if a school is a "state affair," so's a peach tree, so's a bus, so's a pig, so's a carpenter's pay and the hours he works. But that isn't the way it works. No indeed!

For instance, consider pigs. Our states consider pigs very much worth considering. They realize that pigs mean money and that pig cholera means plenty trouble and loss. And they are not only willing, but they are even eager to have the federal government protect their pigs.

Moreover, if one lazy, backward state got uppity about pigs and refused to be protected, the other states would very soon see that it stepped into line. For they don't intend that an ornery neighbor shall endanger their prosperity; hence they accept and install federal control.

So it goes down the line. We have Departments of Agriculture, Commerce, Labor, Finance and Justice at Washington, all of them putting a finger into the state pie with never a protest. But when it comes to the children—that's something different!

WHY ARE NOT ITS CHILDREN AS VALUABLE TO A STATE AS ITS PIGS, ITS PEACHES, ITS TRAINS AND BUSES, ITS WAGE EARNERS? IS NOT ILLITERACY AS GRAVE A MENACE AS PEACH BLIGHT OR PIG CHOLERA OR LABOR STRIFE?

How important is your child's education to you? Very important; the most precious concern on earth. But do you not realize the stupidity and viciousness of the uneducated children on the other side of your state line will bring to naught your child's education—will force your child to live in a dark and criminal world?

You're willing to accept federal control of agriculture in order to keep your neighbor's pigs from infecting your pigs; yet you fight the federal control which would keep your neighbor's children from poisoning the lives of your children!

"State rights"—a glorious theory. BUT HAVE STATES WHICH CAN'T BE TRUSTED TO KEEP LIVESTOCK CLEAN, OR FRUIT TREES HEALTHY, OR WAGES FAIR—HAVE SUCH STATES "THE RIGHT TO BRING UP CHILDREN THE WAY THEY PLEASE." WHEN THEIR WAY OF BRINGING THEM UP SPREADS IGNORANCE AND CRIME THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY?

New York Day by Day

Hot-Heads Vanish

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—Many men and women, greying at the temples, who began to feel completely out of the whirl of the world three years ago are inspired by a new hope. They had for years been giving way to their juniors in almost every line of endeavor.

But Youth had its fling. Men past 40 were camouflaging their age in seeking work. High and mighty posts were held by the beardless. Conference rooms of industrial plants were recruited from the college campus. The New York World was wrecked by young hot-heads.

Striplings of the late twenties and early thirties were holding $100-000-a-year jobs. No industry seemed immune from this juvenile touch. It raged from the movies to finding new worlds. And all of a sudden things crumbled.

In the cataclysmic smash-up there was a call for older, wiser and more experienced talent. Banks, corporations and the like began to remove fledgelings from lofty perches and supplant them with seasoned veterans to steady collapsing affairs.

Mustaches and heads of hair, dyed black, are becoming white and gray again. Years have no stigma of incompetency. The saturnalia of jazz and gin evaporated and out of the mist comes a clarion cry for clear heads, steady hands and more mature wisdom.

It was noticed men who emerged unscathed from the devastation of the panic were past 50—men such as George F. Baker, Dwight Morrow, J. P. Morgan. The younger and more adventurous buckled and were, sans parachute, jumping 'ff skyscrapers. They couldn't take it!

Already this swing from youngsters to oldsters is noticeable. In bond houses high-pressure lads are following new pursuits while middle-aged gentlemen in modulated voices are using the calmer sales talk not heard for so long. And so on up and down the mercantile line.

* * *

Red electric sign darting like a serpent's tongue, over the doorway of a restaurant in the Forties: "Like the acrobat, it's the turnover that counts."

* * *

* * *

Cissie Loftus was on the boards this season in a character part with which she completely "ran away with the show." Years and a series of misadventures have not dimmed her effulgence. Not long ago London was whispering of her eclipse from drug addiction. Yet she came back, freed of its clutches, and received Broadway's acclaim. An illness again shunted her to obscurity but now she is, as Broadway has it, "in circulation again" and winning top honors wherever she appears. Once the toast of Piccadilly, vivacious and hoydenish, she has become a benign, soft-voiced figure with a sweetly sad smile—a true Lady of Sorrows out of sentimental fiction.

Miss Loftus is best in mimicry. She can change herself from an absurd cockney woman selling heather along the Strand into an imperious Barrymore throatily intoning: "That's all there is." And she does it with mere grimaces. A flutter of an eyelid transforms her into an exuberant Sophie Tucker and a tilt of the head becomes a living pastel of George M. Cohan strutting across stage.

* * *

Irving Cobb rounds in from Paducah with a story of the first newspaper extra in a certain small Kentucky city. The innovation was launched following the death of Harding. A newsboy went timidly—it was his first experience—through the main street crying: "Extra! President Harding dead. He certainly is!"

* * *

Post card: "Stop being so all-fired alliterative. To you a well-dressed New Yorker is a flaneur foliating in furbelows. A chorus girl becomes a scintillating siren of the stage. And, of course, we all know what you are!"

A tweedle-bug twittering in the twilight.

Just Folks

Tree and Man

The oak tree never quits its place
To ask about a neighbor's care.
A thing of majesty and grace,
Whose leafy arms seem raised in prayer,
It stands two hundred years or more
Against the storms of winter stout,
While man is broken down before
The sands of seventy years run out.

From the first moment of its birth
Until a rotted log it dies,
Its roots draw sweetness from the earth,
Its leaves draw nectar from the skies.
Patient, untroubled and serene,
A tree, with age in splendor grows,
Because on it no grief has been
Such as the fretted mortal knows.

Poor man must roam the world afar
And give his strength to many needs;
Pride, pomp and place and pity are Forever spurring him to deeds.
Not only must he suffer pain,
But God has fashioned him so fair
That none may cry to him in vain.
Even a stranger's hurt he'll share.

The span of mortal life is brief.
The oak tree long outlives us all,
Yet better 'tis to suffer grief;
To weary oft at duty's call;
To wear our strength and courage out
Against the tides of human fears
Than live and never ask about
The cause of sorrow's blinding tears.

George Ade's Old Bartender

Fat, but Wise

"THANKS—I JEST ET. I'LL HAVE A CIGAR"

This picture, by Rea Irvin, is the frontispiece in George Ade's new book: "The Old-Time Saloon."

It is not exactly beautiful, for the old-time bartender, in his devotion to business and fattening foods, has neglected his waistline.

But it is a picture of wisdom, recommended to the careful attention of young and old in these days of bootleg poisons.

The old bartender knew enough, as a rule, not to drink the whiskey, gin and other stuff that he sold. Looking into the drunken faces, so numerous on the other side of the bar, taught him.

But it was necessary to be polite, and profitable to encourage the desire of his clients to spend money. When asked to "have one," he would reply, in the words under the picture: "Thanks—I jest et. I'll have a cigar."

He could have the same cigar over and over, and by the end of the day might have sold one cigar for five dollars, or even more. The clients did not expect him to smoke it in business hours.

This ingenious device put money in his pocket and kept alcohol out of his kidneys and blood stream, a beneficent combination.

Young men and old, that have been foolish enough to drink the alcoholic bootleg poisons that a benevolent government forces on the nation in these days of Prohibition, may learn something from this picture.

Invent an excuse as good as the bartender's, or better.

With the New Year so close behind us, they might say: "Thanks—I'll have a cigar—or a package of cigarettes. I've sworn off for 1932, and mean to keep it." Your "friend" will find so much pleasure in deriding your good resolution that he won't urge you to drink.

In any case, BE GLAD THAT THE OLD-TIME SALOON IS GONE. And BEWARE OF BOOTLEG SPEAKEASIES.

Our Co-operative Banks

We could have expected our fine co-operative banks to do the sensible thing.

They are willing, even eager, to go into the Central Bank which Governor Ely proposes in order to give continuing and permanent liquidity to banking institutions.

But they will go in only when and if safeguarding restrictions are adopted.

They insist that the investments of this mammoth Central Bank shall be limited to a certain, specified list of securities.

Bonds of the United States and the State, securities of savings banks, trust companies and national banks doing business in Massachusetts and a few other first-class securities—all of these are sound as a rock.

And all of these, and these only, would be open to investments by the Central Bank, if the co-operative banks obtain the approval of their program by the Legislature and the Governor.

Surely this program advanced by the co-operative banks ought to secure approval, because it is their funds as well as the funds of other banks that will create the Central Bank and will be loaned by the Central Bank once it gets into operation.

The Central Bank will do just what its name implies. It will afford an enormous opportunity for the concentration of the banking wealth of Massachusetts into a few hands.

While its purpose is admirable, it will afford the chance of abuse and favoritism.

And for that reason it ought to be adequately safeguarded by such a program as the co-operative banks offer at this time.

Rub Your Eyes

Here's a surprise for all and especially sincere prohibitionists. Dr. William G. Morgan, president of the American Medical Association, tells a United States Senate Committee considering beer:

"Beer has no harmful effects on the human body. It is a food, particularly valuable to those prevented by illness from taking sufficient ordinary food. Beer contains many vitamins and acts as a tonic for loss of appetite."

Perhaps Thomas Jefferson possessed that surprising information when he recommended beer so strongly to the American people as a cure for whiskey drunkenness.
